WITH PRIDE WE STAND

Scona. A school that is so full of traditions that it is almost bursting at the seams. And the spirit that exudes from the students and staff here is one that cannot be matched by anyone, though many have tried. Tradition at Scona does not only mean "do not step on the crest", there is a lot more to our overwhelming sense of tradition than that one thing.

Every year with new students entering and the older ones saying good-bye, new traditions are formed and passed down from grade to grade. Whether they be the traditions cemented with the foundation of this building 41 years ago, or the ones that transform over the years into bigger and better things, such as our newly painted halls, the sense of tradition and pride in it is overwhelming.

Scona spirit there is something to be proud of. People, past and present are proud to be thought of as a lord and are not afraid to flaunt it at public gatherings. Take in a football game or a volleyball championship or the Holiday Classic, catch a drama performance or a Jazz Band set and one can feel the pride and spirit radiating from the crowd. Scona fans know where it is at. Especially when it comes to a new and unique fashion that will only be worn by a Lord.

1996 is also a very special year because a new member has been added to the Scona family. The school mascot, Gaylord, has been reborn as a newer and younger Lord. It is with great pride that Gaylord is added to the school. Introduced at this year's Holiday Classic Pep Rally, Gaylord has been going strong ever since.

Strathcona is filled with people who are willing to give their all to add to the strength of the spirit and sense of tradition that sets us apart from the rest. And keeping with this tradition, this yearbook is dedicated to the long, strong life of True Scona Spirit.

The tradition is passed on from old Gaylord to the new, Sconaites can rest easy knowing that the true spirit of the school will never falter.

Wherever the Lords are, the sense of spirit is overwhelming. Gaylord watches over a cross country meet.

Members of Scona Pride share the love and warmth of Scona spirit with children in the U of A hospital over Christmas.

Val Walker and Heena Chavda show their spirit and love for Scona at the football homecoming game.

THE NEW CLASS

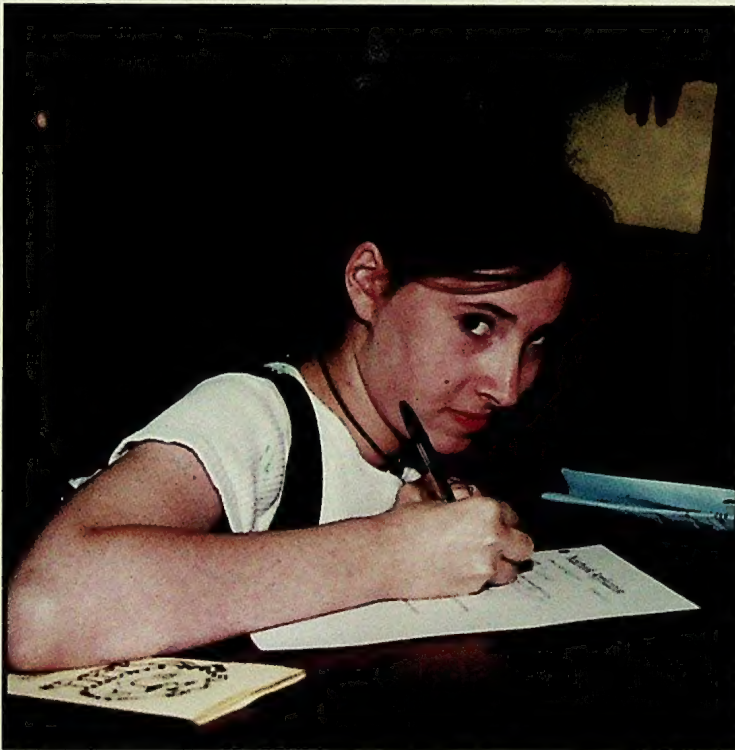

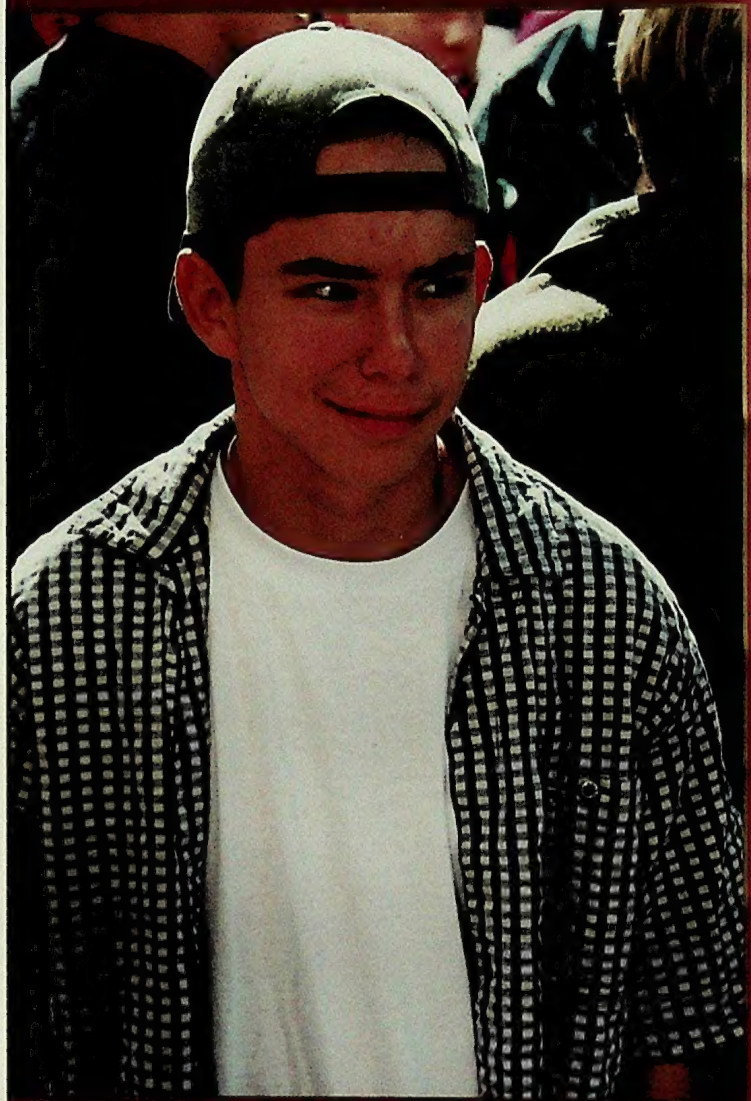

Alright, this is it! The First Official Year in HIGH SCHOOL. Dadadadaaaa. Now that you've gotten optimistic and hopeful about the years to come, here are some facts you will probably need to know to survive at least this year of your High School career. 1 - Almost everyone is going to be taller than you. (unless you happen to be taller than them (then in which case consider yourself lucky) 2 - Be prepared for some serious late, late, late night study sessions for mid-terms, finals, and pretty much all of your other tests. 3 - Finding your way around the school, see, Scona used to be an array of multi colored arrows and doors. But now it's green, everything's green. And for those of you who thought you were slowly going insane, yes, the doors are numbered wrong! There is no rhyme or reason to it, you just have to guess and hope that you're close, so that you are not late for class. And the last and final thing you should know do not step on the crest! Show your pride in Scona, walk around it!

Good luck, enjoy and remember to have fun. After all, these are the best years of your lives, or so, that is what they want you to believe.

Jeff Feniak, Jordan Herman, Aaron Rogers and Jackson Hinton stand in line to feed their stomachs with a bar-b-que.

Kristine Raworth is getting started by getting involved in Clubs Day.

Watch and learn. Grade ten students sit through the grade ten assembly during welcome week.

High School can be a frightening experience for new grade tens, but not at Scona where veterans of Scona share their knowledge and encouragement at a grade ten assembly.

A STRONG TRADITION

The excitement of the rookie year is over, and the superiority of the senior year has yet to come... so what can we expect in grade eleven?

In grade ten we turned sixteen and could legally drive. In grade twelve we'll be eighteen and can legally do whatever we want. In grade eleven we're seventeen and we can... donate blood.

But since we were nervous about getting into Scona last year, and most of next year will be spent preparing to get out, the only time for us to enjoy high school is right now. It's the year when the unfamiliar faces in the hallways suddenly have names...

when we discover that Bio 20 is nothing like science 10, (and that CALM is nothing at all) and that some teachers are meant to befriend while others are meant to avoid.

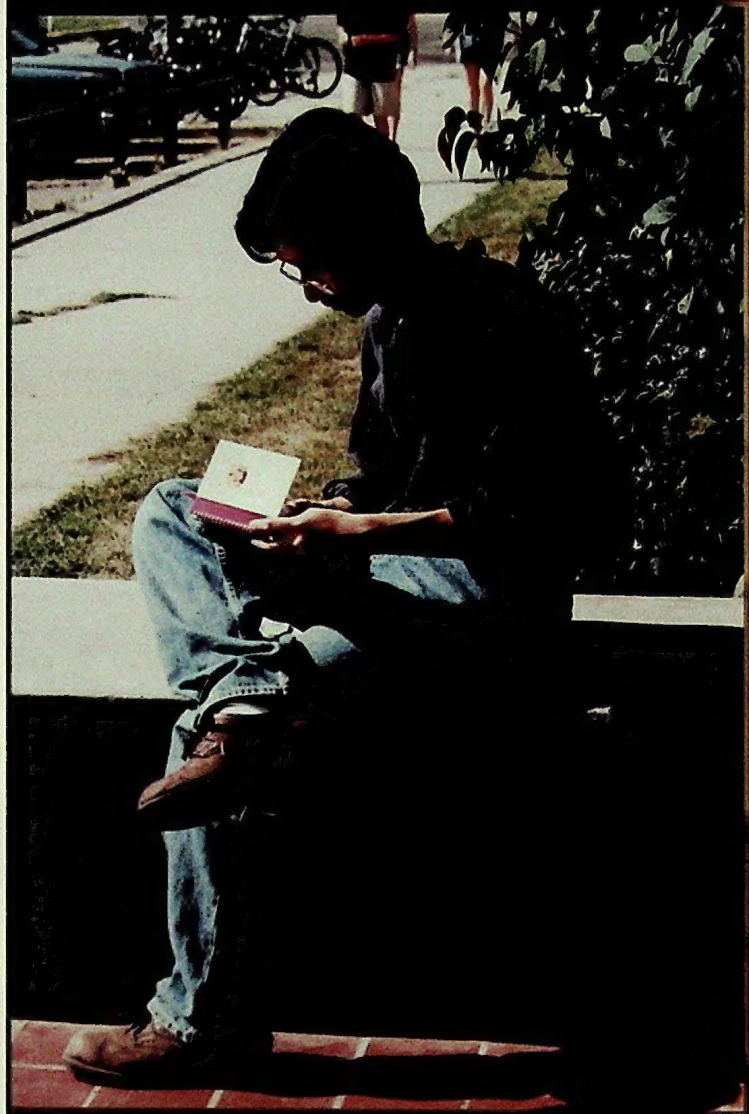

Grade eleven is the moment to cherish, with neither the uneasiness of meeting new people nor the pressures of diploma exams. All that we are expected to do is be ourselves, the budding leaders-of-the-future who will continue the great traditions and school spirit in the coming years.

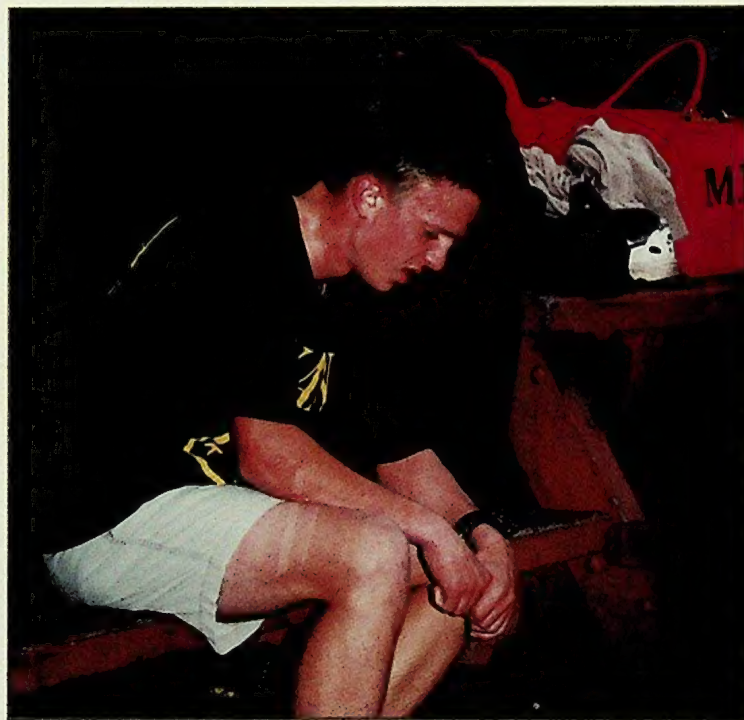

Besides we can already drive and donate blood. Next year will be fun too - we can drive while donating blood on our way to wherever we want to be.

It keeps going and going.... Steven Batke enjoys a lunch hour hack session with friends.

Deep in concentration, Dennis Wong studies his timetable for the coming year.

Working or sleeping? Sometimes it's hard to decipher, Christopher Round is concentrating on a tough problem.

Stephen Kamp and Graham Lessard. Jammin' in style to close the grade ten assembly.

Blair Dary takes a breather after an exhausting cross country run.

LAST OF THE LORDS!

How does it feel guys? We own the school; hallways are cleared as we stride down them in pride, and teachers now think that we really are becoming mature, responsible adults - how little they know!

We're almost there though. Only one more year to leave your mark on Scona - no, not on the bathroom walls! It's our turn to carry the torch of glory for Scona; we know the cheers to keep the Scona spirit alive and to uphold the excellence of the Scona reputation. (It only takes one S, C, SCO cheer to make other schools shake in their boots).

Stress of the future? No doubt! From worrying about Mr. Frizzell's math tests to the diplomas - worth a mere 50% of the course mark - to where or what's going to happen next year, your mind is on overload. But thank goodness we have John Staples to come up with some groovy activity to take some of the pressure off.

The year of graduation ceremonies: two hours of snoozin' in the Jubilee auditorium, then there's the banquet. How many new friends have been made, and how many memories gathered? Enough to make us remember the good life we've had at Scona. In times of trouble or grief, think of the chant "Thunder, thunder, thunderation! We're the Scona delegation! When we live with determination, we're the best folks in the nation!", and excel on to the next challenge in life. Good luck, LORDS!

Hack Attack! A group of Sconaites spend their freetime enjoying the beautiful fall weather.

Always a great place to hang at lunch.... outside. David Wong definitely knows where to be.

The Three Musketeers. Devon Wray, Staphen Day and Beau Tremblay, caught in the act.

We do what we can. Cheryl Cox welcomes the new grade tens with a drama sketch.

Erin Lange and Lisa Kendall share some laughs to lighten up the grade ten assembly.

JUST FOR FUN...

The bell rings signaling lunch hour or the end of the day. Does Scona stop when classes are out? No way! Besides the clubs, the sports, band and drama, Scona provides numerous ways for students to become involved with their school.

For those Athletes in the halls, intramurals offer a wide range of lunch hour sports to sweat out the stress of the morning. Both guys and girls get to show off their talents at badminton, 3-on-3 basketball, floor hockey, handball and pickleball.

Theme days get everyone into the partying spirit with prizes for contests, costumes and dancing. Guest speakers, films and food fest get even the most timid student into the happening scene.

And who could forget our kind and supportive surrounding community? Tennis courts and park space offer outdoor relaxation during the no-snow season, and the shops and cafes on Whyte Ave. offer a change of atmosphere.

For a more regular tone, the library provides a quiet area for reading, studying or hacking away on the internet. Across the hall at the cafeteria provides a place for card games and a meeting place for many Scona students. With all these recreational opportunities it is no wonder people love Scona! How can you go wrong here?

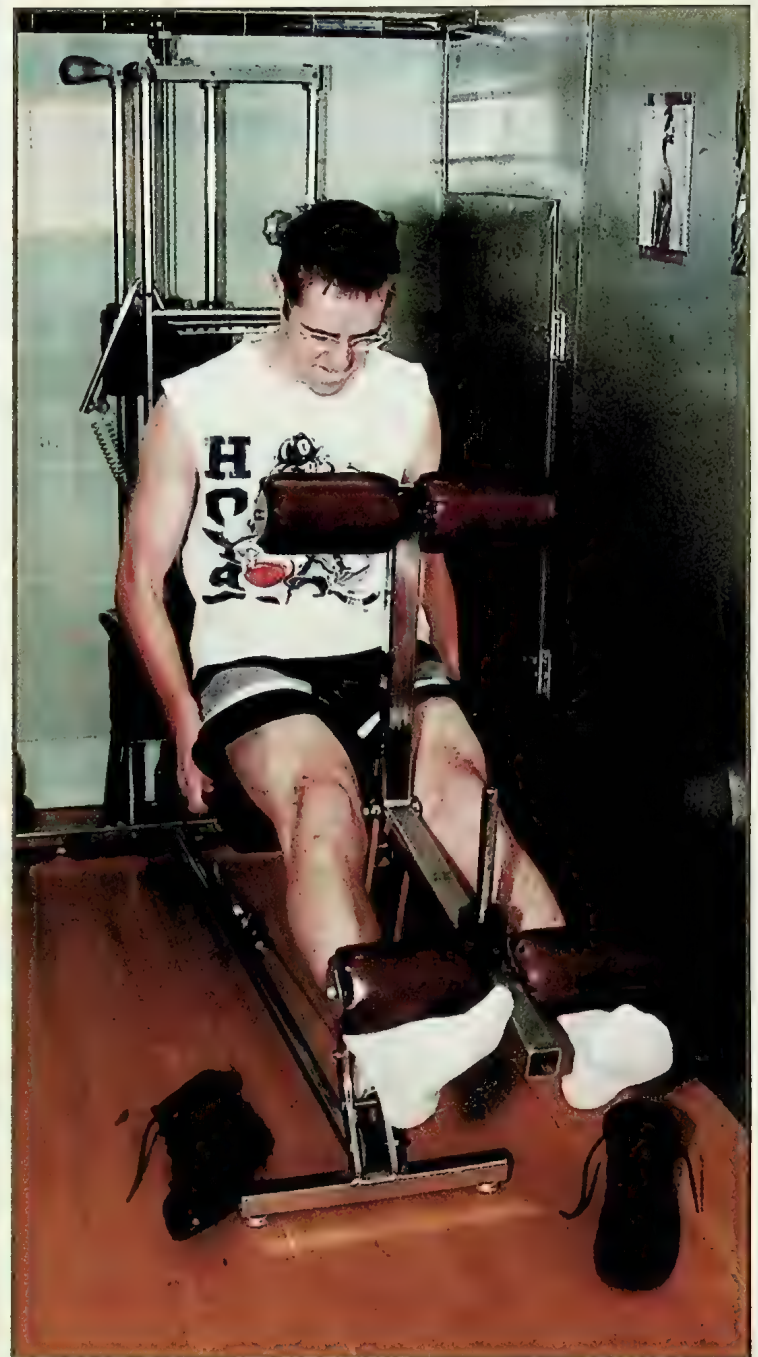

Beth Andrew and Sherry Spurrell take a well deserved lunch break before it is off to the books again.

Tyler Duggan learns the fine art of driving.... golf balls that is, in Phys Ed 30.

Anthony Purgess and Radik Kwasniewski concentrate on a game of chess to ease the monotony of the school day.

What better way to enjoy the beautiful fall weather than to play a game of frisbee.

Blane Banyard uses his lunch hours for their full potential, using the time to get in a vigorous work-out.

WE'VE GOT SPIRIT!

New school? Feeling disoriented? Hey, have no worries - Welcome Week is intended to help you find your bearings. It's an opportunity for new and returning students to see how energetic life at Strathcona can be!

Events like Clubs Day encourage everyone to come out and get involved in good 'ol Scona spirit, from the Ski club to the Computer club and even the Travel club.

Outdoor activities like Head-on-bat and full contact Musical Chairs never fail to bring out the best in eager participants and spectators; the traditional Welcome Week barbeque is always a great way to meet new people. To top it all off is the Welcome Dance - bright lights, loud music, good times with old friends and making new ones.

Scona's not just about books and teachers; it's about bringing the best out of everyone and having fun while doing it - all in the spirit of tradition and excellence.

John Staples, Kacper Jaskowiak, and Darren Fung sample their gourmet cooking at the Welcome Week bar-b-que.

Had enough jello? Victoria Russell spends her lunch hour participating in the potato sack/ jello eating relay.

Yet another successful clubs day. Mr. Hill and Mrs. Von Stackelberg answer potential members questions.

Varnardo Stobbs and Jon Libsekal enjoy the fine cooking of the SU team's Bar-b-que.

Robin Benbow collapses during an invigorating game of Scona's version of musical chairs.

OUR TRUE SPIRIT

"...Let me hear you clap your hands : S-C, S -C-O, S-C-O-N-A Let's go! Everyone knows that cheer. That's the last part of one of the numerous chants that exhilarate our athletes to perform their best in any sport.

Having a successful school is not merely dependent on how the athletes train, perform, and analyze their goals, but it also depends on the attitude of all the students in the school. THAT is what separates Scona from all other schools - how much people care.

Whether it's Scona Holiday Classic Basketball (that Frau McAdam let you out of class to watch) or High School Football at Clarke Stadium, or Badminton at J.Percy Page, Scona supports its Lords. At any competition or match, the intimidation to other schools reaches a climax when the whole room echoes with one of Scona's cheers.

Like this cheer says: "Everywhere we go, people want to know, who we are..." because we're the loudest, most enthusiastic, and wildest bunch of fans a school could want. Scona's where it's at, so come out and cheer on the LORDS!!

Candace Rypien shows her spirit with an ear piercing cheer for the football team.

Scona fans show their enthusiasm with plastic instruments and painted faces.

Fashion statements "R" us. Scona fans show their true spirit.

Gaylord strikes a pose at Scona's homecoming game against the McNally Tigers.

Mount Scona? Nope but close.
Fans master the task of human pyramids during half-time.

The Cross Country team outruns the rival team yet again, and show off their svelt at the Pep Rally.

Kris Covlin shines during his solo performance at, jazzing up the crowd into a frenzy.

WE ARE THE LORDS!

Part of Scona's great history and continued success is portrayed by the sheer intensity of Scona spirit. And when the annual Pep Rally comes along the whole school really feels the spirit that radiates from the people and even the walls that surround them.

Numerous clubs and teams gathered in the gym to rev up the school for their upcoming year. The cross country, swim, football, Junior Men's and Women's and Senior Men's and Women's volleyball teams as well as clubs such as Scona Pride, Grad and Scam all shared their pride in Scona with the audience. And after the skits, cheers and announcements, two thoughts were probably passing through the minds of the audience: "Man do we ever have a lot of people involved in Scona" and "We really need an extension for our microphones!"

The Pep Rally was an overall success and adding to the spirit of Scona, the Jazz Band rocked the gym with some very excellent music. The hour spent in the gym that day created something that no other school can match - 100% pride in Scona, and all of our talents and achievements that make us who we are. A pride that makes everyone shout,, "We are the Lords!"

The New and improved Gaylord struts his stuff for the very first time in Scona History. Definately one for the books.

Tawa Babatunde and Susan Buckmaster lead the Senior Women's volleyball team into centre court.

GROOVIN' GOBLINS

Welcome to the marvelous time of year when dressing up, scamming candy, and being immature are all part of the school year, and that's only the teachers. Halloween comes to Scona once a year (like it does for everybody else) and people change, we are no longer human beings; we are Monsters, angels, pumpkins, ghosts, California raisins, Nuns (who play guitar on a broom!!?) and much more. There was the fashion show on stage in the large gym, where prizes were awarded for the best costumes, and a dance, which was actually quite difficult (you try dancing with your sweetie when he's dressed up like a raisin, and has a four foot diameter).

Scona loves to dance, this is a fact! And when we have a dance almost everybody shows up to boogie down. This year we had our traditional Welcome Week Dance. It was cute, all the grade elevens and twelves arrived at the school around 9:30, 10:00 and the grade tens arrived at about 7:20. How could they have had time to go home, shower and eat? Unless of course the didn't go home.... But moving right along, soon followed the Halloween fashion show and dance, and then the Christmas dance, and of course the Year End Dance. All in all it was a good year for Scona, and all those cute grade tens stopped arriving at 7:20, now they show up at about 8:15.

Halloween cannot be official without at least one jack o' lantern. Erin Lange struts her stuff at the fashion show.

There is nothing like a good ol' fashioned hoe down. And when it comes to dances Sconaites know where it is at.

Flashback to the 70's. Christian Hurysz and Kris Ridell fit the stereotypes to a "T".

Time to slow down. As crazy as students can get at dances, Tish Prouse and Christine Mercier prove that there is always time for a slow dance.

Mr. Anderson and Mrs. Hancock share a scary moment during Scona's halloween celebrations.

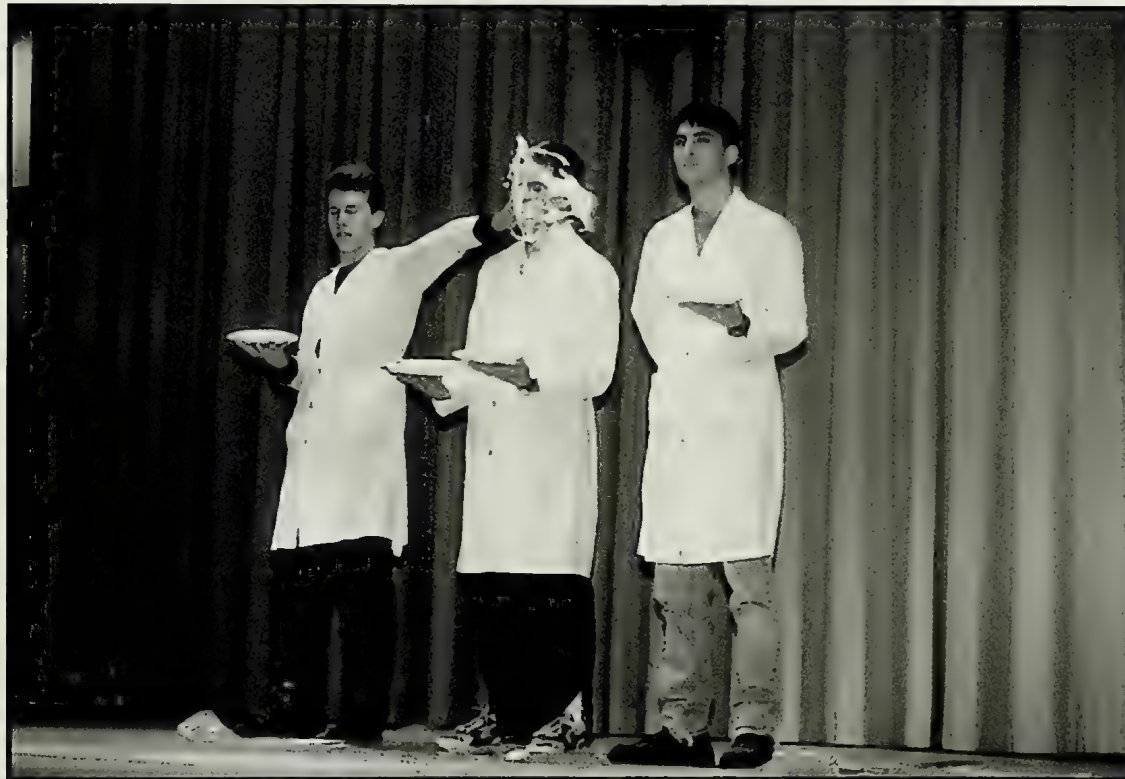

FULL OF LOVE AND GOOD CHEER

Christmas is full of traditions, turkey, presents, a fat man in a red suit, and of course Scona's annual Lack of Talent show, affectionately called the L.O.T. With visions of sugarplums dancing through Scona students heads, the L.O.T. adds another dimension to the Christmas spirit. It gives students and teachers a first hand look at the talent (or lack of) that the students of Scona possess. It is definately an interesting sight. There are dancers, bagpipers, trial bikers, pie throwers. Yes, you heard right, pie throwers, in a Monty Python skit. If sharing in the joy and laughter of people's talents doesn't get you into the Christmas spirit, then the pride of the carolling football players certainly will. Only at Scona can Christams become such a involved holiday. With Jolly old Saint Nick and the talented Scona Lords to entertain, who can't help but find themselves whistling "Rudolph the Red nosed Reindeer" as they walk to their classes.

Roses, roses, roses. Heart-shaped boxes of chocolate, Shoebox (a little division of Hallmark^(R)) cards with romantic poems, little candies that say "Hug Me" and "My Girl". It's the time of year when a chubby naked angel shoots his bow and arrow at unsuspecting couples and says..."What's your favorite bathroom item??!!" Yes, this was Scona's interpretation of Valentine's Day as the school gathered into the cafeteria to watch the much anticipated (and hardly romantic) Dating Game. Armed with a plethora of dumb and embarassing questions, host Darren Fung—neither naked nor an angel—played Cupid among single Scona students looking for true love. As for others, Valentine's Day was another excuse for sweethearts to bring flowers and candy to school, or for strangers to perhaps share a blush and a smile with someone across the room. All in all, it was just another day to appreciate what wonderful people walk the halls of Strathcona. (And hey, maybe next year you could trade that blush and smile for some flowers and candy!)

The art of comedy. Andrew Hoyer, Aron Birenbaum, and Trevor Wilson prove pie throwing to be a skill.

Concentration is key. Jason Yu keeps his focus during his performance in front of a captivated audience.

Don't be shy. At Scona's version of the dating game anything can happen. Tong Lam gets caught up in the moment.

INTO OUR CULTURES

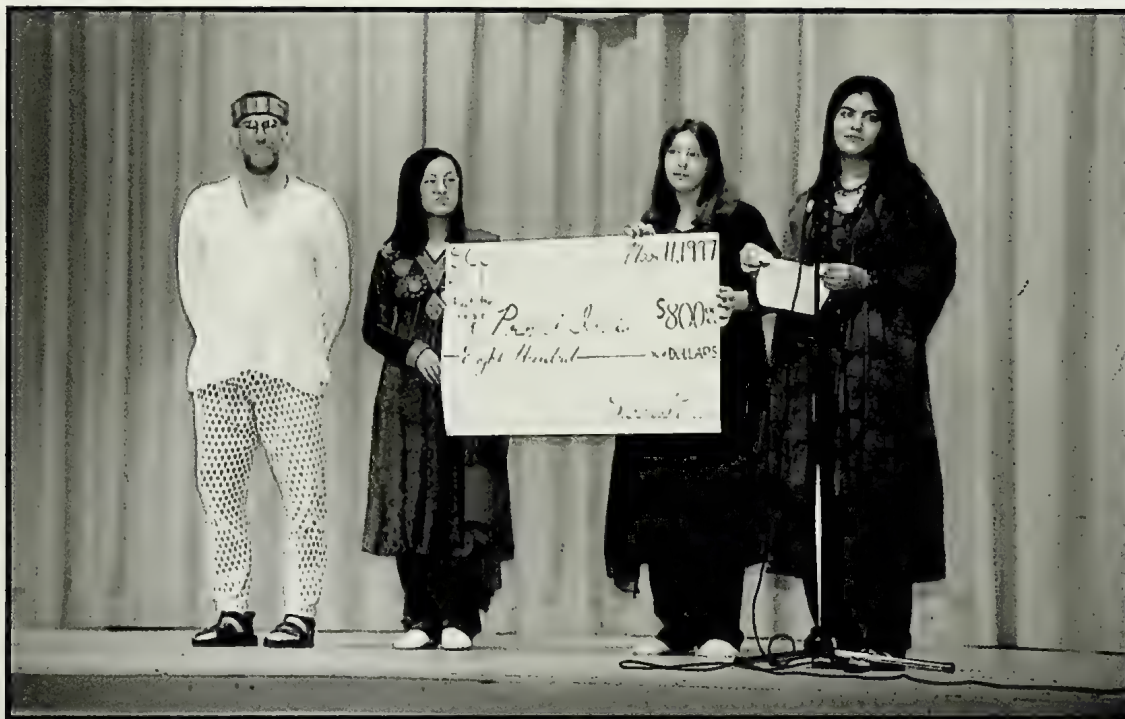

Once again Scona continues a few of its traditions with the annual International week and Western Days breakfast.

It all started in the middle of March where there was a whole week dedicated to the celebration of the different cultures in and out of Scona. The weeks events included a fashion show, which displayed Scona students in their cultural threads, continued with guest speakers who spoke on foreign policies and world hunger. At the end of the week there was everyone's favorite, the food fair, where the students had an opportunity to try different international treats.

Scona's spirit doesn't stop there, it continued with another theme day. Western Days. The highlight of which was the Western Days pancake breakfast. Not only did the students get to miss a half an hour of school to munch on tasty pancakes, but they got the chance to see students and teachers alike sport their western duds. As usual there was line dancing and Square dancing by the Phys Ed. 30's, but to add a little twist there was also a karaoke machine. If you can picture Scona students and a karaoke machine, you can imagine the honkey tonking time that was had by all.

Scona's annual events continue to be a strong tradition that will survive well into the 21st century, full of spirit and pride.

The creators of Project India, Scona Pride members show off the results of their intense fundraising efforts. A check for eight hundred dollars.

Carl Domning enjoys a hearty Western Days pancake breakfast.

Melissa DeStefanis and James Wright show their true country spirit at the Phys. Ed. 30 square dance presentation.

Don Iveson, John Staples, Ben Kaasa and Kacper Jaskowiak belt out het good ol' fashioned honkey tonk groove.

A group of cultured students display their true colors at the International Week fashion show.

WILD OATS

Picture if you will a gym at seven o'clock at night, filled with parents who have armed themselves with cameras, and video cameras that just won't work. Throw in a cast of almost thirty, add a relatively calm director, prop people who can never really remember what we needed the rope for anyway, lighting and an awesome stage, not to mention the stage crew. And what have you got?? WILD OATS! A cast of characters, a bunch of people who if they are coming will probably want to be going, a few thespians (that's with a TH), who seem to know Shakespeare better than good ol' Will himself. A rich and beautiful lady romping around in buckskin, but that's not all! We still have the Irish Indian Scout whose brother is a Mexican tequila-maker; a pastor for the church of Christian suffering and denial. The Gammon family who are all just a little bit off if you ask me. Amelia Dolores Morales who followed her husband from Fort to Fort on foot and bore a child she named Seymour Seymour, but went by the names Jack Rover, Harry Thunder and Dick something-or-other. But we must not forget the villainous characters in this play...who harmonized so beautifully with the Gammon men. And lastly those two chicks Kliegle and who!?! man were they obsessed with lights. Roll all of that into one and you have an amazing cast, magnificent set, and finally a calm director, a stage crew who knew the actors lines and a good time had by all.

A good old fashioned hanging will draw a crowd any day. Gabriel Gellner waits anxiously as his life hangs in the balance.

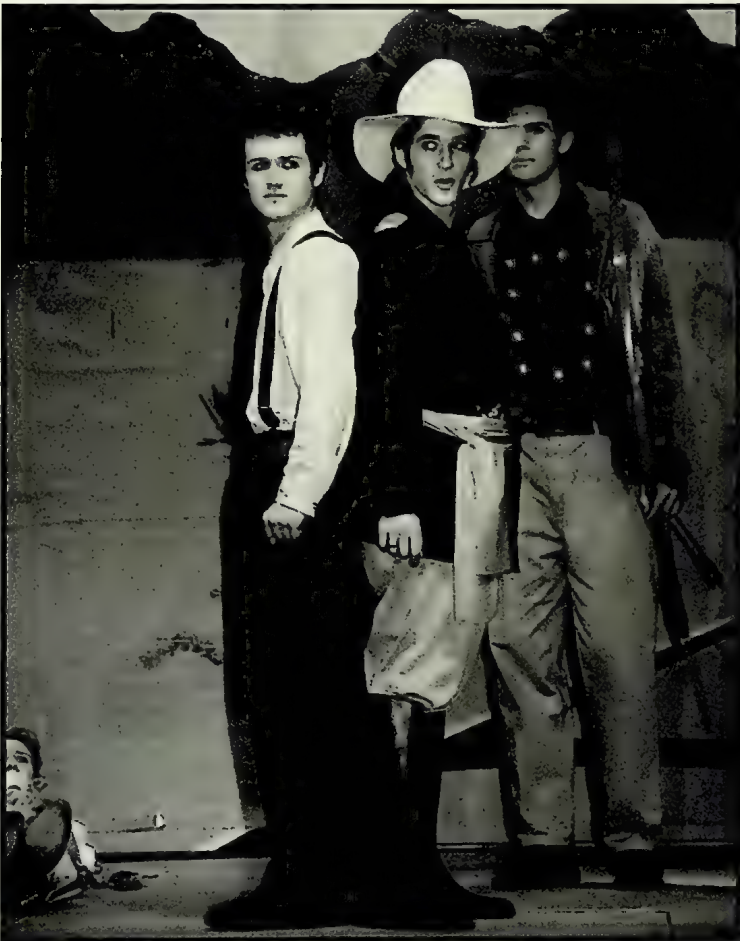

Gabriel Gellner introduces James Coppens to the delicate art of flying through the air at high speeds.

The confrontation between "local bad guy" Cade Barry, town sherrif Tyler Wayne, and resident cactus grower Kris Riddell is bound to get prickly.

Don Iveson and Phoebe Krudys consol Marcie Laverdiere during an emotional moment.

Walk ten paces turn around and shoot...Gabriel Gellner and Peter Feldstein try and settle their score through good old-fashioned gunfighting.

Ahhh the sweet sound of harmony...well almost. Chris Henderson, Sarah Stevenson, Cade Barry Mike Hudson, James Coppens and Tyler Waye.

ONE ACT FESTIVAL

Sean Hillaby becomes the world's best DJ in Scona's annual One Act Festival.

Lisa Lemieux tells a story to Alexa Simpson and Kyttek Jaskowiak in the play Two Bottles of Relish.

From April 23-27, 1997, Scona held it's annual One-Act festival. Each one act play is casted and directed by a drama 30 student, involving much time and hard work. Stage management and crews are also entirely up to the students, and with tremendously professional results! As usual, the festival was a huge success. Every night was well-attended, and all the plays well-received. The plays this year were: A Thing of Beauty, Clocks, Cut, Eulogy, Memory, Paint the Town Red, Softly, Teeth, The Game of Chess, The Girl in the Mirror, The New Step, The Wooden Pear, This is a Play, and Two Bottles of Relish. The One-Act festival is a veritable showcase of talent, with many excellent aspiring actors, many of whom did not perform in the year play. The plays cover every genre imaginable, with five shows running each night. All were so well done that no one seemed to mind seeing the shows that ran twice on both nights! The decision of which two plays to send to cities must have been difficult, but in the end "This is a Play", directed by Cheryl Cox, and "The Wooden Pear", directed by Ashley Dawe, were selected. Congratulations to all performers, directors, and stage crew members for a terrific and profesional job, and if you missed the One-Acts this year, don't make the same mistake next year!

Jaqueline Yaniw and Tyler Wayne discuss life in the play The Wooden Pear.

Graham Ellis and Karen Herrington are bonding with their child in the play Softly.

Hanna Wendel developing her acting talents in the play Cut.

KEEP ON RUNNIN'

If there's one sport that Lords seem to turn out in droves to do, it's running. This year, Scona's cross country team had a unprecedented turn out and a fantastic season. With over 100 people on the team, and close to 90 at every practice, it's no wonder that the Lords cleaned up again. Scona's success is largely due to the dedication and enormous pain tolerance of the athletes - both required to work through the gruelling practices doled out by coach Kirkland. However, the end is always worth the discomfort along the way. To be down at Gold Bar Park during city finals and watch runner after runner from Scona push past the finish line, many with top ten placements and personal bests, is a wonderful feeling. The camaraderie among the members of the Cross Country team is unparalleled in any other team, and this is just one more reason why Scona students keep on running. Way to go Lords!!

Conrad Brander and Jon Driver find support in pairs.

Rachel Gajda finds that extra push to keep her going.

Ben Kaasa is going strong all the way to the finish.

LORDS OF THE COURT

The date: November, 1996

The Sport: Volleyball

The Event: City Finals

Into the gym walks an assemblage of top-class athletes, but they were more than just volleyball players. There was a certain quality about them, some sort of aura of eminence, that compelled every head in the gymnasium to turn around and see them. Who were these people? Where were they from, these people in red, sporting the letter "S" on their jerseys? Super heroes? 'Fraid not, they're much more than that. Ladies and gentleman the Strathcona Lords have made their entrance.

The hours and hours of dedicated training hard practices and frustrating competitions paid off in the end as three of the four teams appeared at the City Final in November, two of which also advanced to the provincial final.

The Junior Women placed fourth at the Memorial tournament and second in the Spruce Grove, and ended the season with a tough defeat in the league quarter final. The all-rookie Junior Men's team took first place at Spruce Grove and Second at the Eastglen Invitational, and finished their season with a silver medal at the City Final.

The Senior Women polished their season off with Scona's first-ever gold medal victory at the 4A Provincial final, held in Red Deer, Alberta, which topped off an all-around successful year. The team enjoyed first place finishes in all of their appearances, including the U of A, Bev Facey and Salisbury tournaments, plus the City Finals. The Senior Men encountered a challenging season, including the tournaments at the U of A and UBC. They placed second at the Salisbury tournament and City Final, and in the end accepted the silver medal in a game well-fought at Provincials.

The senior girls celebrate their victory with a post game cheer.

CHARGING FORWARD

Get ready to see more action from Scona's football team, if this year is any indication, then Scona is about to make a spectacular comeback into the high school football scene. With the combination of the senior and junior football teams into one large team, younger more inexperienced players were trained and compete in a level of play that intimidates most rookie players. With the support of the fans, especially at the fan challenge versus McNally this fall football is squirming its way back into the hearts of the Lords, not just the select few jocks who play it. With a great coaching staff and highly skilled and dedicated players, the football team has been able to charge forward into new horizons, opening up a new window of possibility for the teams in years to come. The Lords football team is making some changes and all for the better. Watch out for the new face of the Lords.

SCONA IN THE SEA

"Swimmers, mount your blocks!"

A major rush of adrenaline surges through the body. The Scona Lord awaits the mark. This Lord thinks back to the hours of training and countless laps of pools swam to prepare for this moment-city finals. The moment the other schools fear the most, because it means another trophy and championship won by Scona.

Eleven years ago, a group of dedicated hard working Lords began the rigorous three-and-a-half months of swimming their guts out. Superior breath control, more efficient strokes and greater team spirit were drilled into their minds. And what was the result?

"Hey! Who cares that I'm wearing a speedo? Who cares if I'm not the biggest, and strongest individual of SCONA? I'm gonna go out there, at cities, with the rest of my team, and win the city championship for me, my category, and for my school!"

"Yeah! Scona! Way to Go! City Finals are won by the efforts of the Lords like this one. Y'know, this sounds an awful lot like this year's city finals where Scona raked in its eleventh consecutive city championship. Simply marvelous effort, Scona!

With hours of practice under her belt, Maureen Melnyk poises herself for a perfect start.

Tish Prouse and Adam Mills watch intensely as Scona fights for the gold at cities.

NEW HEIGHTS

Lords basketball has made a name for itself this season! A young senior men's basketball team comprised of eight rookies proved that they could play with the best in the province. This year's teams did Scona proud achieving all kinds of awards and with the Senior Men's team even attaining first place in the Scona Holiday Classic and the Western Canada Tournament.

Scona's basketball teams took the school motto of "tradition and excellence" to new levels. Scona's basketball teams are becoming the best they have been in many years, complimenting the well rounded programs of athletics and academics already established here at Scona. The great success this year is only a taste of what is to come in the following years.

ROCKS AND BIRDIES

Once again our very own curling team proved they had what it took to compete against the toughest teams in the league.

On January 16th the senior mixed team beat out the extremely strong Bev Facey team to capture a gold in the city championships. They then advanced onto the Northern Provincial Zone Championships where they were defeated in a heartbreaker game. This year's curling team proved to be one of the largest in years. With many talented players, and a just as talented coach, four teams were formed, the senior mixed skipped by Darryl Wiechman, the senior mens skipped by Peter Kaechele, and two junior teams skipped by Ben Millar and Gladys Anderson. With many experienced curlers continuing on next year, the team is assured to be as much as a success as this year! Congratulations!

Another season of Scona's Badminton team came and went this year. Although the team did not repeat last year's city championships, there were many other successes. Under the experienced coaching of Mr. Cheng, Mr. Gerun and Mr. Hill, all of the team members improved their skills greatly throughout the many practices and matches of the season. Scona also managed to send a variety of players to the provincial tryouts. Players also went onto the Senior National Championships. The dedication and determination of the badminton team cannot be matched throughout the city, and under the coaches supervision, Scona is set to capture yet another city championship in the near future.

A NEW TRADITION

Scona's first soccer teams since 1986 had an unbelievable comeback year. The Senior Women's team, coached by Ms. Andreoli had a very successful first year. After two tough opening losses, the girls rallied to make it into the playoffs. However, they suffered a heart breaking loss to Ross Sheppard in the first round. The girls could not overcome some key injuries to some major players. However, the Senior Women's team of 1997 had a strong young core and as a result things are looking up for 1998.

The Senior Men's team started the year with a bang. The Lords captured the title of the Spruce Grove Soccer Tournament to begin the year.

They went on to place third in the South Division during the regular season led by coaches Mr. Robinson and Mr. Goldie, the Lords moved through the first playoff round with a shootout victory over Old Scona. In the second round, the Lords prowess shocked the highest ranked team in the city, M. E. Lazerte. But due to the toughness, and experience of the Lazerte team, Scona suffered some major injuries and as a result lost in the city semi-final. At the end of the year four team awards were handed out. Top Offensive Player: Shahin Ashrafpour Top Defensive Player: Ben Bennetts Most Valuable Player: Vanardo Stobbs Most Inspirational Leader: Shubh Siduh Tara Simonato and Katherine Hagg wait for the dust to settle.

TRACK AND FIELD

#26! We did it yet again. A sea of track team members celebrate after the capture of yet another city championship.

This Scona Lord positions herself for another great Scona sweep.

KEEPING UP THE TRADITION! NUMBER 26!!

June 7th marked the twenty-sixth year of Scona's domination of the city-wide Track and Field scene. Although there is very little to say about Scona's tradition and excellence in track, after all there have been 25 previous years in which these themes were stated, the team still deserves significant recognition. Just because we've been winning for over a quarter of a century doesn't mean we shed any less sweat and tears along the way. A phenomenal amount of hard work goes into every city championship — and this year was no exception. Scona team this year has been through a lot to number 26. As usual the dedicated athletes began practicing the day after spring break — earlier than every other team in the city — and there has been a great amount of gruelling work since then. First there were the killer mosquitos, coupled with incredible heat that left the athletes with no choice but to shed some clothes, bug fest and the heat wave that left practices almost unbearable for a few days. Then came the opposite — SNOW!! Mini meet two was cancelled on account of 20cm of overnight snow. Not only that, but practice was actually cancelled for the first time in anyone's memory (that is cancelled except for all those hard-core long distance types.) Scona track has not become legendary for nothing. We have made it to number one and have been staying in power for a reason — passion and dedication. This year, although the competition is trying harder than ever to nip at Scona's heels, the Lords have demonstrated once again — come snow, rain, funny tans, and yes, even killer bugs — we're willing to put up what it takes to keep the dynasty going. Congratulations, and good luck to next year's team...keep the tradition alive!

Joyce Wong shows the competition how a javelin is really thrown.

IN THE SPIRIT

OF LEARNING

Scientists are us. Owen Murray completes his lab on the conductivity of solutions.

Getting down to work. Christian Hurysz takes a pause from his Social Studies 30 class to reflect on the lesson.

A SENSE OF HISTORY

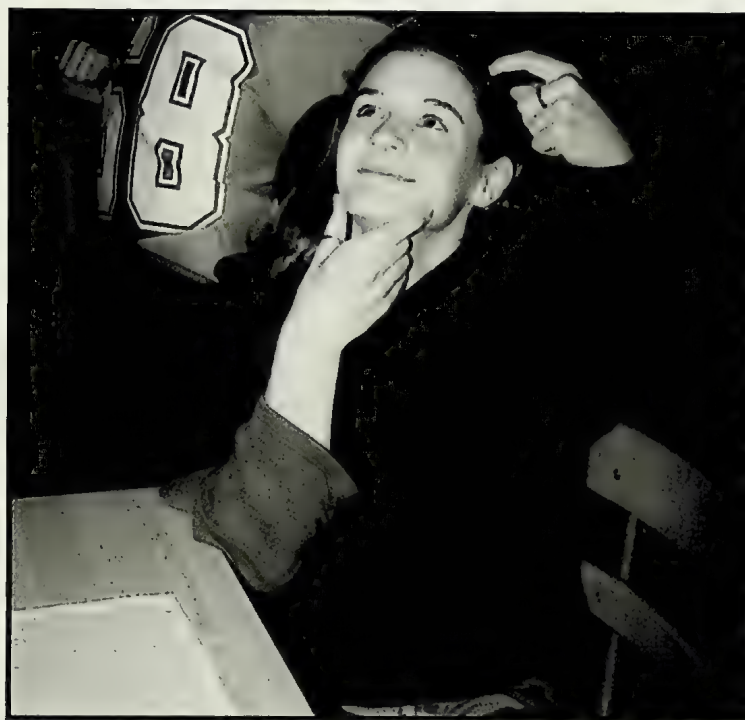

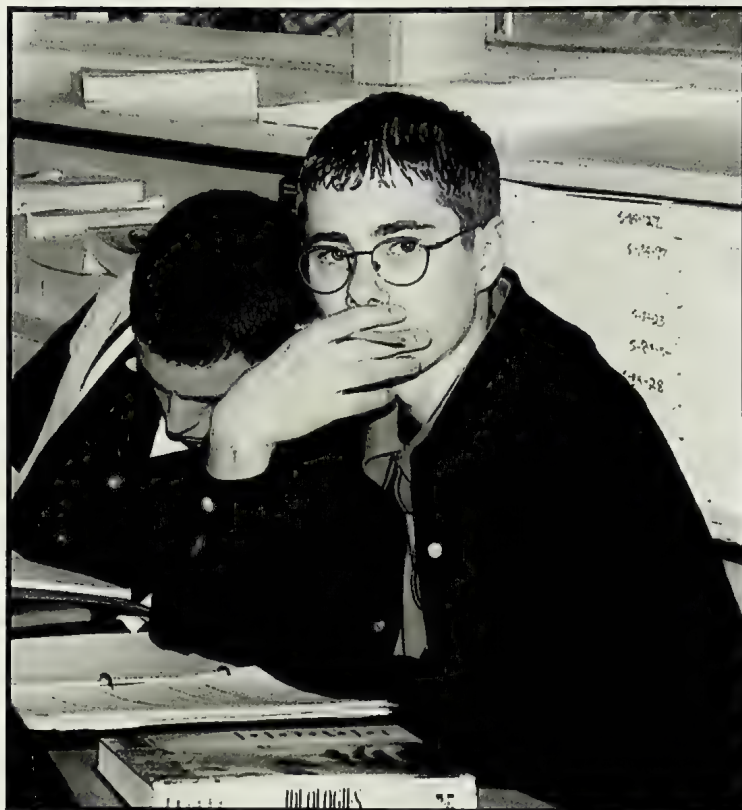

Scona students take a lot of different routes when it comes to course selections - some don't take math some reject physics and others opt out of biology. However, if there are two courses which give all students common ground, those two are English and Social Studies. Both are fundamentally important courses teaching verbal communication skills and lessons about life in the real world. Scona excels in both courses, with an established humanities course combining the two, plus a highly regarded AC/AP program, as well as many fine teachers. The Social Studies department was even recognized in the Edmonton Journal for innovativeness in teaching about the two world wars.

To top it all off, Scona students consistently score higher than provincial averages on diploma exams - proof positive for Scona's academic reputation

Social Studies 30 can be a stressful course. Darren Waskel takes a breather during class.

Hard at work. Students of this English class know when to get down to business.

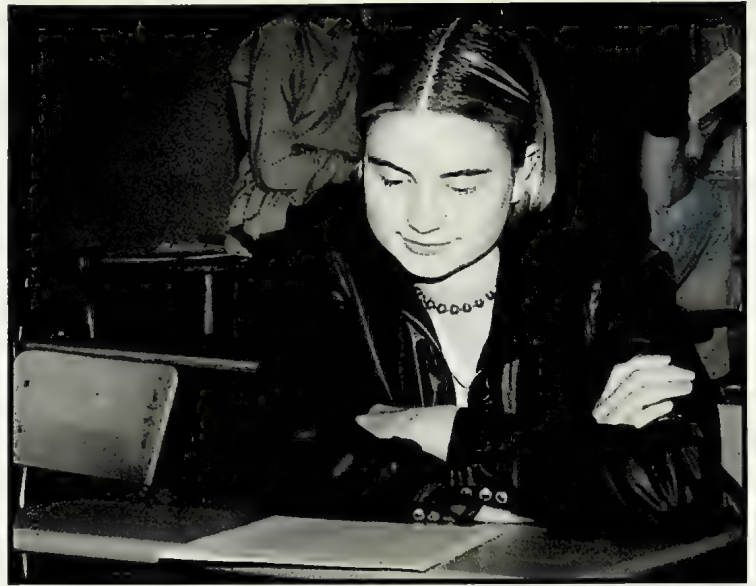

Deep in concentration. Andrea Lown uses her English class productively.

Making English a little more interesting. Kajtek Jaskowiak and Ryan Blackmore find a unique way to portray their mythology assignment.

Midori Hyndman develops her literary skills.

It's a rough life, but essays are a part of every English class. Jenn Nelson prepares herself for one.

MORE CALCULATIONS

In the busy lives of Scona students full of dances, parties, sports, drama, SU, and clubs, many outsiders are amazed at the Sconaites ability to spare time for the pursuit of Maths and Sciences. But even with such busy lives, Sconaites still remain some of the best academically.

Once again, Math Week went off without a hitch. With math teachers dressed to the nines in math memorabilia, and a chance for students to win "I Love Math" shoelaces through solving problems of the day, all had the opportunity to get involved.

Sciences are also highly touted subjects here at Scona. Students consistently score above average in physics, biology and chemistry exams, proving that there is more to Scona than clubs and sports. Students have a chance to learn about the human body, DNA, chemical reactions, and vectors. And they are not passing up this opportunity. The Sciences are definately an interesting suplement to the learning process here at Scona.

THE ARTISTIC SIDE

Art, where one learns that a line is not merely a line. For example in cubism, the art of using squares to portray an image. "I don't see squares... I see...buffalo", are the once famed and so much pondered words of Scona's infamous art instructor. The art room, where paint, crayons and chalk are instruments of wonder, but still childhood toys.

Welcome to the world of perpetual chaos. Where despite the first incredibly long solitary walk down the hall, where your shoes squeak and everybody seems to know what they are doing, acceptance seems to be more common in the drama room than in any other. This is a whole new world for some where boys become men through a ritual of learning to apply...eyeliner (as well as mascara, foundation, powder and lipstick) yes lipstick goes only on your lips, not the rest of your face. A place where girls become women, by a simple change of costume. A place where emotions run high and there always seems to be no time.

As we travel through our lives, wherever we may go, the opportunity to speak with people will inevitably present itself. And we as members of Scona's prestigious halls, can proudly involve ourselves in conversation with almost anybody. From Spanish, to German, and the ever popular French. The language skills we have learned will always be with us. And thusly Au Revoir, Aufwiedersehen, and Adios.

Errol Oliver, Tyler Waye and Naomi Legg rehearse their scene for Drama 20.

A whole new person. Tiffany Coan becomes her character for her performance.

Work in progress. Alecia Ebbels uses her time in art class to create a masterpiece.

Learning a new language can be frustrating, but Karla Zeise and Holly Jordan find a way to make it fun.

Marcie Salling shows her true colours.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Today's world is undeniably business-oriented. With ever-increasing reliance on skills pertaining to computers, the business education department at Scona has become more and more important. Students who leave high school without the ability to handle a word processing program, type, or work competently on a computer are simply not facing the real world! However Business Education does not focus only on computers. Courses are offered in Law and Accounting as well as Computer and Word Processing. These courses are equally as important as Math or English, because they equip students with very practical, necessary skills. Scona's department of Business Education is just another example of the excellence within the walls of the school. This year, the big news was the addition of the new Pentium computer lab, replacing the old outdated one. Also continuing in the Spirit of New Traditions, the curriculum for all Career and Technology Study courses (also encompassing Industrial Arts and Home Economics) is being revamped next year to provide more relevant course work to students. With all of these improvements, Scona's Business Education Department is looking more than ready to head into the next century. Now, how ready are YOU?

Blake Wickmans enjoys a class in the Industrial Arts Wing.

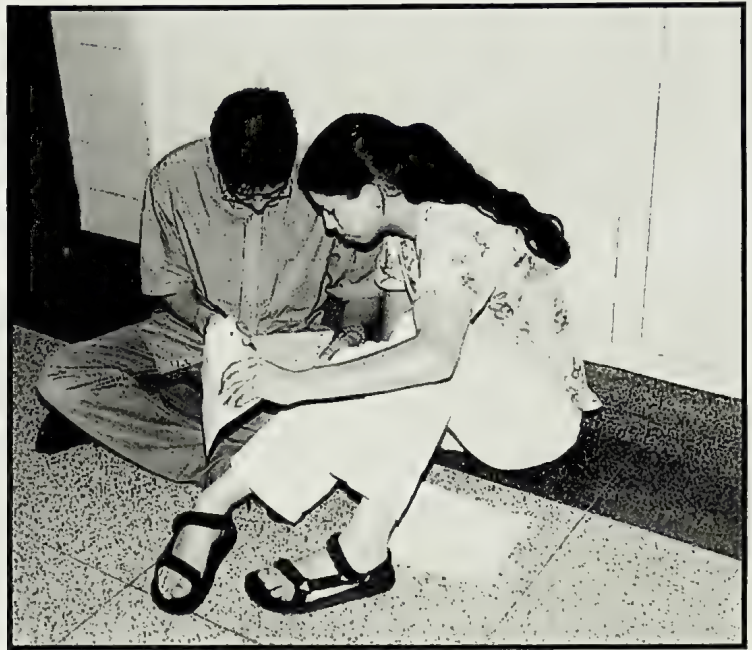

Kelly Lee is helping a future Scona Lord during a special visit to our school.

Practical applications. Scona students use the Internet to search for knowledge.

Alicia Bourque and Mike Ford are working on one of many CALM projects.

BEYOND THE BASICS

Industrial Arts

This year was the last year that Industrial Arts will be referred to as such, because next year, in the spirit of new traditions, it will become Technical Studies under the umbrella of CTS. The technical courses offered at Scona are designed to provide hands-on work in various fields, often offering a pleasant change from the tedium of everyday classroom work. These courses, which include CAD, Photography, Electronics, Car Care, Desktop Publishing, Silk-screening, Fix-it, and Woodworkings, challenge students to apply theoretical knowledge to practical problems. Every month, in each IA course, a Student of the Month is chosen to recognize hard work and exceptional performance. Another Highlight of the Industrial Arts departments this year was the chance to attend the NAIT

Open House, and learn more about the programs offered there. Scona's Industrial Arts department, like almost all things at Scona, is first rate. Whether you want job preparation, or just an interesting elective, Industrial Arts likely has your number.

Calm 20

Anyone who has their eye set on achieving that high school diploma, has already experienced, or are soon to experience the course curriculum of CALM 20. A course set out by the Alberta government to educate soon to be high school graduates about the "real world". Including sections on how to get a job, choosing the right career, protection and education on STD's, budgeting your money, and many more useful bits of information. Despite this full curriculum, CALM 20 is seen as a joke course by many, with thoughts of "what was the government thinking when they designed this course" floating through their minds. But CALM 20 can be a very useful resource base for the future, when we are out of high school and actually need to worry about budgeting and how to find a long term job.

Home Economics

Have you ever needed to bake a souffle, or a pound cake, perhaps a pizza, or some cupcakes? If so you probably tried Home Economics at one point in time. Home Ec. is a place where students of all ages and abilities are allowed to create marvellous things out of sugar, water, eggs, milk, and many other food group items. What a good idea! Allowing some 30 odd kids at a time into a kitchen, a place with knives, whisks, ovens, stovetops, can openers and other sharp things (betcha never thought you'd cut yourself on a can opener, well guess again my friend.) Home Economics, while entertaining to the usually distressed teacher, can be somewhat trying for the students. Putting together a gingerbread house, usually means that the walls have to be stable, not soft and mushy. But the lessons learned in Home Economics will remain with all who took the class for some time. My favorite lesson, was make sure that you are using two cups of sugar not...well, you get it.

MORE THAN

A TRADITION

Battle of the bands couldn't be complete without Scona's very own, No God No Soul.

Melissa Lane contemplates over a yearbook layout.

NO CRY BABIES ALLOWED

Yearbook is more than a "club". It becomes a way of life. More lunch hours, spares and weekends are spent in the yearbook office than anyone can imagine to bring the events of a whole year into one publication. Pretty soon editors and staff are living, breathing and dreaming yearbook, worrying about layouts, photos, articles and looming, ominous deadlines. Producing a top quality yearbook year after year is not a simple task. Dozens of staff spend lunch hours tracking down articles, shooting photos and chasing that elusive students name. But what makes all of this stressful work rewarding? The fact that we are recording a year in the life of Scona students. The fact that our publication wins national awards and recognition and the fact that we constantly strive to out do and revamp the previous years standards.

Yearbook is truly an invigorating experience beginning during mid summer training sessions and ending in mid July with the final deadlines. I would like to thank all of the dedicated and talented staff who helped make this yearbook a reality.

I would especially like to thank Sherry, Meliissa and Chelsea for their undying dedication and Mr. Gerun for constantly reminding us of those "looming deadlines" and that if the yearbook doesn't get finished by the end of June, we will all go insane!

Mr. Gerun, photographer extraordinaire. Many lunch hours are spent searching for those perfect photos.

Amid utter chaos the editorial staff take a moment to reflect a years work well done.

GRAD COMMITTEE

Grad Committee members Dima Nair and Melissa DeStefanis host the Second Annual Silent Auction.

From September to May, thirteen people have worked long and hard to organize perhaps one of the most memorable moments in a student's high school career, graduation. The graduation committee of 1997 spent many long and tedious hours organizing the event so that it would be a smashing success, and it was! From bake sales to the Second Annual Silent Auction the funds poured in enabling the grad committee to do more and to leave a small amount to start up the next year's grad committee. From friendships to disagreements, from the many surprises and obstacles, grad committee was able to overcome them all with a little help from the advisors, Mr. Wallace and Mr. Ferrar. The success of the graduation activities could not have been possible without the help and encouragement from the countless members and volunteers. Thank-you.

STUDENT'S UNION

The past year has been a phenomenal one for Students' Union. We started the year off with a bang with our annual Welcome Week festivities. We helped get Scona Lords back into the swing of things with Clubs Day, a BBQ and the first dance of the year. With the goals of achieving the highest standard of school spirit and student involvement, SU held other various activities throughout the year, including a haunted house, the Football and Volleyball fan challenges, the Red Cross Blood Challenge, Battle of the Bands, 30 hour famine, and the dating game. The major successes of the year included the Pep Rally, where Scona's best displayed just why every other school in the city is jealous of us. International week proved to be very successful, in that it helped students gain cultural awareness and a greater understanding of the world around us, through ethnic food, a game show and a United Nations Peacekeeper guest speaker at the school assembly. The greatest event of the year was the Scona Holiday Classic Basketball Tournament Pep Rally, where we retired old Gaylord and unveiled a new, rejuvenated Gaylord. None of these events could have been successful without the dedication and effort by the SU executive, the staff and students. Not only did we continue the "Tradition and Excellence, but we created a few traditions of our own, for future Lords to be a part of. Keep it goin' Scona!

Students' Union president Heena Chavda introduces Gaylord to the new grade tens.

LORDS OF MUSIC

Scona's music program has once again proved that "through these halls walk champions". The Junior band, and the Senior band, debuted this year with a phenomenal Christmas Concert.

Then began the numerous festivals and competitions. The first competition was the Alberta Stage and Concert Band Festival in Sherwood park, where both bands did Scona proud. The Junior Band received a silver while the Senior Band received a bronze. In April, after endless practice hours, the Senior Band then went on to participate in Festival Canada, held in Banff. Meanwhile the Junior band travelled to Red Deer to compete in the Alberta Band Association festival. They earned a well deserved Excellence in this competition. Finally, a combined grade 10 and 11 band provided the accompanying music for Commencements.

Besides this hectic performance schedule, music students also had the opportunity to attend a special Edmonton Symphony Orchestra performance which included a symphony composed by fellow music student, Darren Fung.

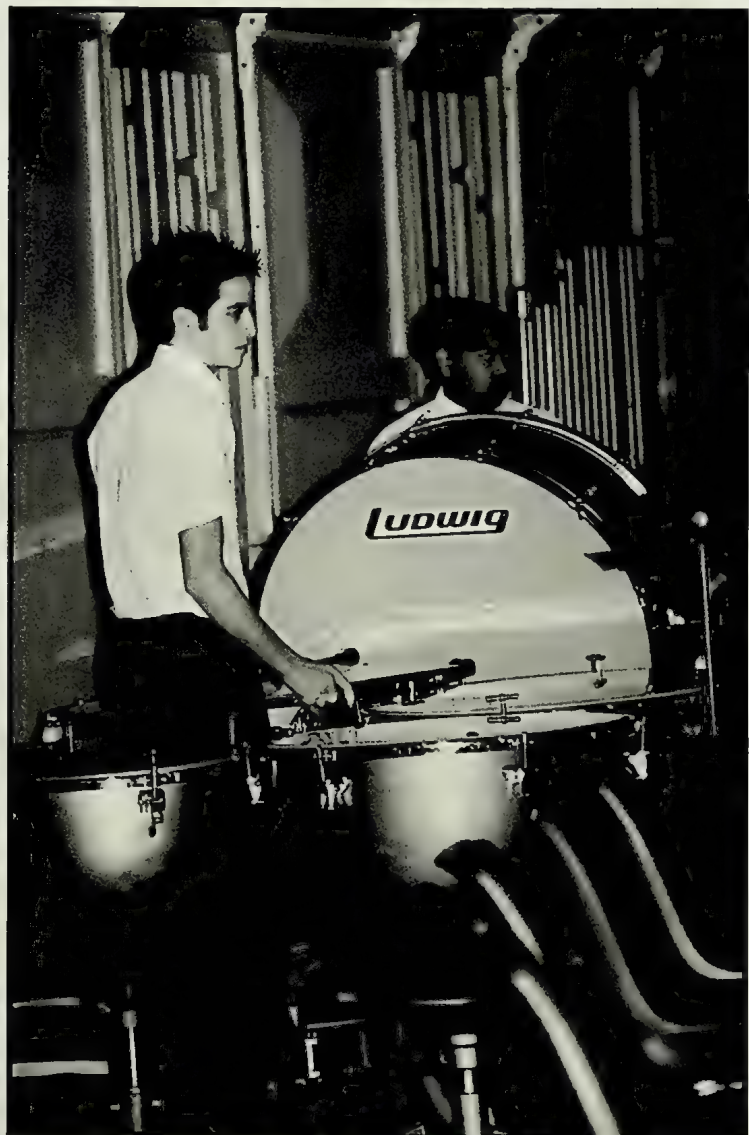

The bands this year were so skilled and talented that a CD was recorded at the last concert of the year.

Under the supervision of Mr. Klause and through dedication and hard work, the Senior and Junior bands excelled this year, and is just a taste of what is to come.

The trumpet section plays its part in unison.

Accompaniment is always essential for a complete band.

Senior Band practices hard for their memorable CD recording.

Christie Jensen and Lisa Lemieux concentrate on their flute performance.

Mr. Klaus joyously conducts another successful concert.

The Senior Band hams it up after a successful performance in Banff.

DOIN' IT WITH STYLE

Every Friday after school there is a late hanging group of students in the North West hallway. Anyone who hangs around will hear an earnest group of twenty some wanna-be jazz dudes being constantly harassed by Maestro Klause. And for what? Not fame, not fortune, but for the love of jazz. Scona's Jazz Band once again rocked (or shall we say "Jazzed") their way through another phenomenal year, being recognized as an elite Edmonton Jazz Band by being invited to play at the Yardbird Suite during Jazzworks. Being awarded a silver medal at Sherwood Park's Festival of the Bands, dazzling the crowds at an invitational gig at the Canadian Airlines Rocky Mountain Music Festival and amusing fellow Lords at pep rallies, concerts, and performances. This year, unselfish work has brought this group far, and these jazz wanna-bes became what they really wanted to be.

Ben Kaasa, Jeff Farragher, Stephen Ruggerio and Charles Smith keep the audience clapping.

In the middle of a competition. Scona Jazz Band.

The Jazz band heats up the stage with yuletide cheer.

Kris Covlin struts his stuff during his saxophone solo.

COMMUNICATION GIANTS

The LIP has now been around for three years at Scona, with each year building on the foundations of the previous one. This year saw the run increase to five full issues, each with substantial gains realized both in the depth and relevance of content as well as the overall look of the paper. This publication has come a long way since its humble beginnings, though not without some growing pains: paper layout sessions until 3:00 AM on school nights, chasing after missing articles, and endlessly hunting down funding for the paper in the surrounding community. But, thanks to a dedicated staff core and executive, there was always enough text to make a full paper and enough money to print it, but still never enough time!

We can be proud of a wide variety of things as Lords, including the fact that we have by far the finest high school newspaper in Edmonton, as we discovered when we hosted an Edmonton-wide student journalism conference in February. The visual consistency and content quality is unmatched, to say nothing of the frequency of publication. As the voice of the Lords, the LIP Politburo would like to extend thanks to all those who spoke up as well as those who listened by taking the time to read your Lords In Print.

Radio Club

Have you ever been wandered around the Scona halls at lunch time and wondered "where on earth is that music coming from"? or maybe "what possessed them to play that"? Well what you are hearing and pondering about is the music being played by the ever valiant radio club people. They provide us with entertainment, and much amusement at lunchtimes. Instead of paying attention to all the teachers roaming the halls muttering "clean this up...pick that up..." we can entertain ourselves with the techno, Jazz, classical, and other various cultural sounds.

Many lunch hours are spent in the radio booth playing those funky tunes.

OUT IN THE COMMUNITY

Project India, definately a worthy cause. Especially if there is baking involved!

In the great tradition of starting new traditions, Scona Pride blazed a trail across yet another year, breezed through new challenges, and all the while had a whole lot of fun. With over thirty members, finding eager help was never a problem. In fact, with the help of the entire school this year, Scona Pride's projects were great successes.

Our newest challenge, guaranteed to be our proudest new tradition was our Project India campaign. The entire school eagerly jumped on the bandwagon to help raise the four hundred dollars needed to sponsor one child in India through school for a year, and faster than we could count the money we soon realized that we would be able to sponsor two children!

SCAM. Scona Communication And Media. A small, yet merry group which communicates school events out to the community through the media. Faxing requests to radio stations, television networks, and newspapers to attract attention to Scona. SCAM also maintains a display board showing off the achievements and pictures and events within Scona. For some time now SCAM has also been sacraficing many long hours involved with laying out the school newsletter sent out monthly to parents. Every month SCAM is also the one who selects the Lord Award winner through the criteria of excellence in any area in or outside of the school.

A MATTER OF SPEECH

Helping future Scona students.
Lending a hand in the community.

Scona's 1996-1997 debate team was an awesome mixture of veteran debaters and enthusiastic newcomers. The team of over a dozen fast-talking, politically minded students gained a great deal of experience as they participated in the Old Scona debate, Winston Churchill debate, mock parliament, and mock trial. Highlights of the year included Lisa Lemieux and Don Iveson placing third in the Old Scona competition, as well as Don Iveson winning top parliamentarian in the always entertaining model parliament. Congratulations to a strong team for continuing in the tradition of debating excellence at Scona, and for setting high standards to meet and exceed in the future.

GADGETS GALORE!

On March ,1997 Scona Lords and Scona's Parasitic Horde participated in the 1997 Science Olympics at the Edmonton Convention Centre. It was a day for friendly competition between high schools where almost every aspect of science was applied. Given a month to prepare for two of the events, participants were kept wondering about the other three mystery events which they found out about only at the time of the competition. Teacher advisors Mr. Bentrude and Mr. Hill helped to lead the team to a victory with their guidance and knowledge. The two school teams won a gold, a silver, a bronze and a third place overall in division IV.

INTRAMURALS

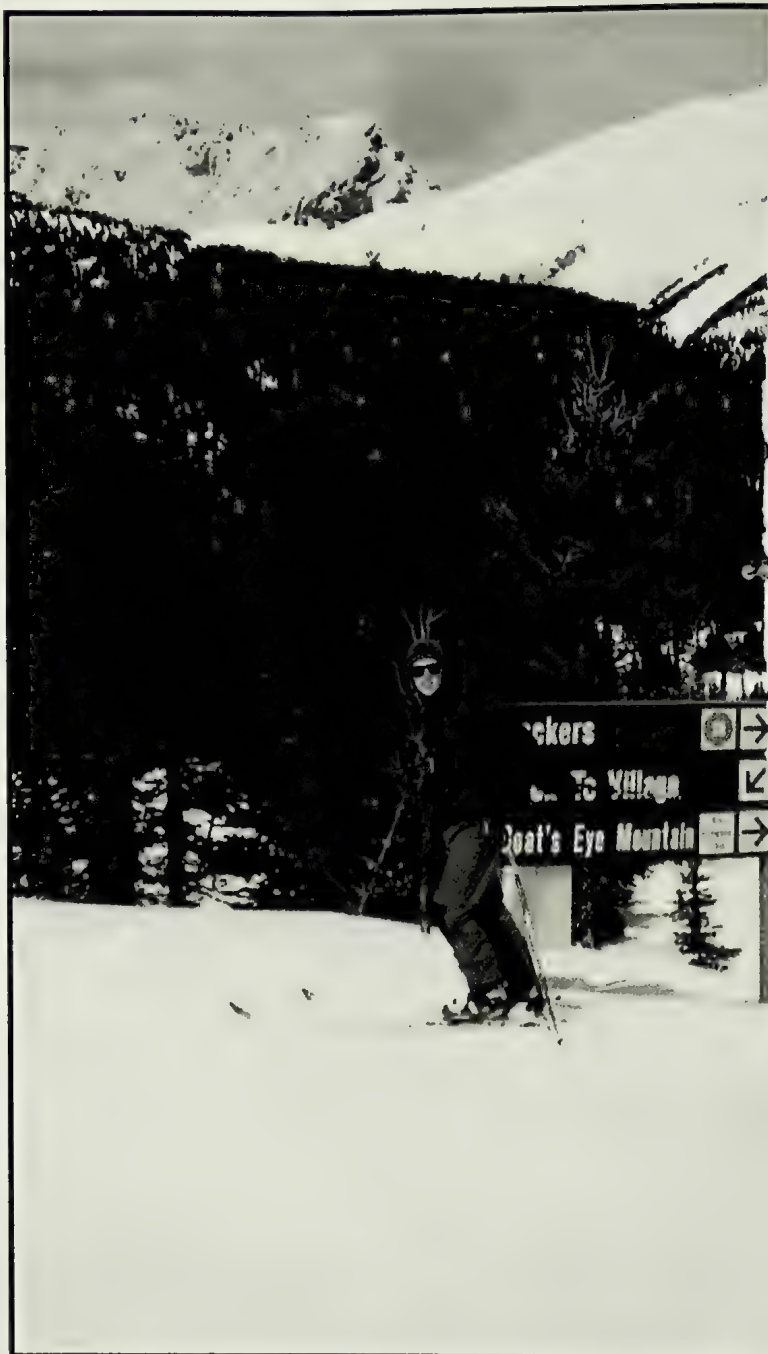

Ah lunch time, the time of day we get to eat and....we get to eat and.....well what do you do at lunch? We could always go outside, but there's a few downfalls to the great outdoors. Its either -35 with about 40 feet of snow, or its +25, and the mosquitos that attack you are as big as sparrows. Did you ever think about intramurals? You get to play some awesome sports, basketball, volleyball, floor hockey, and many other cool things, all in a climate controlled environment, without bugs. Perhaps you're thinking "Intramurals, me? pshaww!!" Well did you ever think about the fitness possibilites that intramurals has for you? Instead of sitting around all lunch, doing nothing you get to get up, exercise, and even kick some teacher butt (that's not physically, I mean you can't actually kick say, Mr. Goldies butt, but you can beat him in floor hockey) So if you didn't go for Intramurals this year, maybe you should try it next year, Kick some butt.

Louis Burega awaits the coming of the birdie during a badminton game over lunch hour.

Floor hockey proved to be one of the most popular intramural sports, for students and teachers alike.

POLES AND BOARDS

This year's ski and snowboard club was a great success with excellent snow conditions everywhere we went. The trips included two Friday evenings at Rabbit hill, and a weekend each at Fernie and Sunshine/Lake Louise. The accomadation chosen by Mr. Cebuliak is always good with the highlight being Wolf's Den right on the mountain at Fernie. The teachers willing to join in the spring time ski sessions were Mr. Cebuliak,

Mr. Michaud, Ms. Von Stackelberg, Ms. Brice, Mrs. Garner and Mrs. Bishop. Without their support this club would not be possible. Good clean fun is stressed on all trips, and what could be more fun then jumping into the hot tub after a long hard day on the slopes and then into your nice cozy pajamas. Don't forget to save up your money for next year, cause it will be better than ever!

What a great way to beat the long line ups at the ski lifts. Pull each other back up the hill.

Just a little tipsy. Mr. Klause tries to regain his balance.

Teal Rasmussen, Jen Nelson, Tronni Hargrave and Erin Wilde share some laughs at the ski hill.

THE SPIRIT

BEHIND SCENA

It's a bright sun-shiny day. Rob Scott and Trisha Pasmak seize this opportunity to relax in front of the school.

Refreshing. Ryan Poltaruk quenches his thirst.

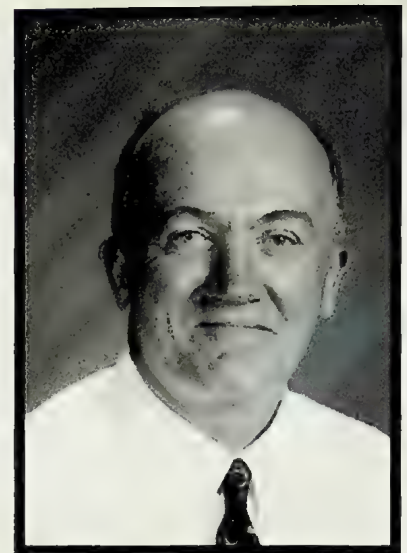

Principal's Message

Strathcona's long tradition of excellence has continued this year with our students achieving excellent academic results, a number of city athletic championships and fine arts recognition.

We have continued to meet our unique challenge not to accept our accomplishments as being good enough by striving to excell. Our focus this year and in years to come will be to retain our wonderful reputation in the community through the achievements and responsible citizenship of our students.

As well, our school motto, "ut qui ministrat", "as one who serves", has continued to be taken very seriously. Strathcona students recognize they can make a difference to others and they have provided service to our partner, the University of Alberta Hospital, and to a variety of charitable projects through the year.

I would like to thank our yearbook students and staff for producing this excellent record for Strathcona's 1996-97 school year.

THE CORE OF SCONA

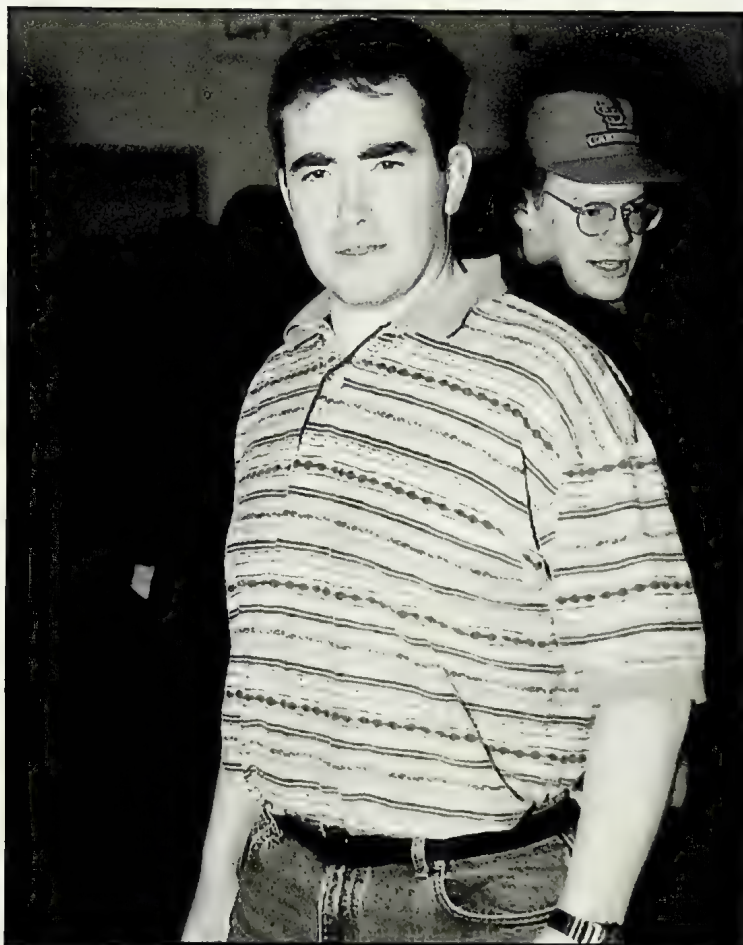

Without a doubt, Scona is a great school, teachers like to say that it is a great school because it is full of great students. While this may be true, the fine teachers and support staff also have a lot to do with it. With superb instructors who love what they do in our classrooms, it is not surprising that Scona students rank among the top students in Alberta on diploma exams and in other academic competitions. Our teachers and support staff also enrich the community life of the school with the thousands of hours that they devote to coaching and other extra-curricular activities. What would a ski trip be like without Mr. Michaud or Mr. Cebuliak? A volleyball practice without Mr. Pon? A cross-country meet without "Coach" Kirkland? A trip to the Scottish Highlands without "Miss Von"? It just wouldn't be the same.... There is also one final thing to be said about the staff members at Scona: there are sure some uncanny resemblances to many historical and present day figures. Have you ever been walking down the hall and could have sworn you saw the younger Mussolini, or Saddam Hussein? How about Ned Flanders, or even rock and country stars such as Willie Nelson or Comedian Bobcat Goldtwait. Trust me you are not losing your mind, well, then again maybe the green tiles are getting to your head.

A NEW GAYLORD

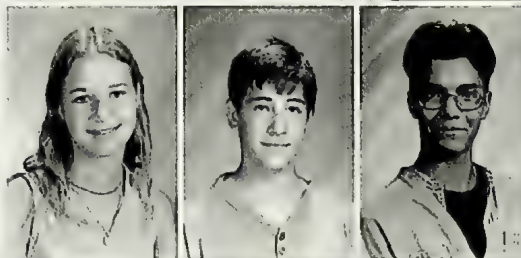

Take a look at any Scona event, and you will see one constant. The people will be different, the settings may change. But there amid all the fans and spectators looms the ever loved Gaylord. This year though, Gaylord adds a new dimension to Scona. In the previous years Gaylord had become a tattered old mascot that although still captures our hearts, others saw merely as a pile of fur dancing wildly in the crowds. In this spirit, Scona welcomes a new member to its family: the new and improved Gaylord. Gaylord is more than just a soft furry mascot that will cheer for hours on end. Gaylord represents all the tradition and spirit that has ever passed through these halls.

I could go on about how Gaylord is every fan cheering for Scona, every athlete playing on our teams, but he's more than that. He is a spirit which transgresses all time lines and generations. He is one friend helping another, he is community service but most of all he is courage and pride. Courage to try anything, even just once and pride in ourselves for trying. He is a person trying against all odds. He is everything we feel, say and do at Scona, now and in the future.

Through out the history of Scona there have been traditions that have been added and some that have evolved. Adding to these traditions makes Scona that much stronger. With the rebirth of Gaylord to our loving family, one could say that Scona is progressing in the "Spirit of Traditions".

FASHION UPDATE

Ahhh! As you busily stroll through the halls, your long lean body is covered in nothing but your hip hugging cigarette pants, or, for the rest of us, jeans or cords. The multitudes walk by you, but unlike a private school, all are different and just as welcome. The 60's and 70's vintage are in style this fall, and the hippie trend continues as the idea of sandals and no shoes at all is strong.

Our fashions though are not all old, some fresh new ideas have developed. Try plaid pants or men's shirts. For those more daring, there are always the mesh, and pleather (that's plastic leather) materials that are guaranteed to make a statement. And nail polish of any color, anywhere. For those with a high tolerance for pain, body piercing is the newest fashion trend. But if you have no pain tolerance at all, there are always the "fake" body rings that can be found just about anywhere. After all, who has to know?

The clean cut look is also creeping it's way into the halls of Scona. As we grow out of the years of junior high and decide it's time to start acting older, students seem to dress older as well. Guys are wearing cacky pants, and girls are discovering that make up is not meant to make you look like a clown.

Last of all though there are the people who dress for comfort. Wake up in the morning and do not feel the need to dress for 2 hours to get that special look. The key to fashion this year is found in the all encompassing phrase "like whatever".

PRIDE IN SCONA

There are many clubs and organizations at Scona that build up the spirit and moral of the student body. There is one club in our school that takes it a step further than the rest. Scona Pride not only organizes events within Scona, but in the community as well. Community involvement that makes a difference.

During the past two years Scona Pride has expanded and added new projects to their list of accomplishments. There are teddy bears donated to sick children who are in the U of A hospital over Christmas. Students at Scona have the chance to purchase a teddy bear which members will deliver with Gaylord at the UofA hospital. The newest and by far the most global project Scona Pride has acquired to date is Project India. When Mr. Richards came home from his trip to India, he brought back exciting news. A teacher in India sponsors dedicated children without the resources to further their education by keeping them at her home and paying for their education. Seeing endless possibilities to help fellow students, Scona Pride raised money through various fund-raisers in order to help sponsor more bright children in India. To date, eight hundred dollars has been raised, due in part to the overwhelming response of students here at Scona.

Scona Pride's involvement in Scona and the community, global and local, has proven that the spirit that we create here, can move past the walls that surround us, and have a positive effect on everyone our spirit touches.

Truly Scona Pride lives up to its name. Keeping the Pride in Scona going strong!

There is nothing that could get a pack of grade eleven students working harder than the thought of missing a full day of classes and being served a delicious lunch. That and the fact that they would also be learning more about the world in the process. What a marvelous idea. A whole day of school devoted to debating. It was anger invoking at times, as students truly enveloped the ideas of their countries, and yet educational at the same time. In groups of four, grade eleven students from Social Studies 20 classes all over Scona were assigned a random country from Berkena Faso to Zaire. Through researching everything from the exports and imports to the current political situation, they had learned enough to represent those countries in an all out debate.

Then came the big day when the students-ambassadors entered the small and large gyms dressed in their country's native apparel, armed and ready to attack. It was communist vs. democratic, north vs. south and Canada and the U.S.A. vs. almost everyone else. After a thought provoking morning of picking on the United States and Canada, those snappy dressers with the snappy answers sampled foods from each country before it was back to another couple hours of debating.

The UN debate is a new addition to the Social Studies 20 course, and with the overwhelming success of the first two, this will certainly become a tradition. Learning more about the countries that exist in our world, to create a better world here at Scona.

SYMPHONIC BLISS

February nineteenth marked the debut of an amazing "symphonic work" called Tone of Colours, composed by Scona student Darren Fung. Last May Darren entered a contest through the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra designed to encourage young composers. Darren's extensive musical credits, including twelve years of piano study and four years of saxophone study,, enabled him to enter and be named one of the two high school students chosen to write symphonies.

In July, Darren was given thirty melodies, each four bars in length, written by local elementary students. He had to choose one of these melodies to form the basis of his composition. According to Darren, the melody he chose "jumped out" at him immediately as it was extremely suited for the fanfare style piece he hoped to create. Much of his inspiration came from one of his idols, John Williams, who has written for such famous movies as the Star Wars and Indiana Jones trilogies, as well as last year's Olympic theme.

A phenomenal amount of work went into Tones of Colours. It took approximately three months for Darren to write the full melody. By December he began the arduous task of scoring the piece for a full orchestra. Throughout this process Darren relied on the knowledgeable assistance of a mentor, John Estacio, who is the composer-in-residence for the ESO.

Once the task was finally accomplished, though with little time to spare, Darren could relax - somewhat and listen to the first performance of his composition. He was surrounded by a number of family and friends, as the Scona music students were able to attend the debut. Congratulations in a terrific piece of music Darren.

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

On May 8, 1997, Seven of Scona's best bands took part in the third annual battle of the bands. They rocked as hard as they could, trying to win the title of best band at Scona. The competition consisted of almost every type of musical genre ranging from Jazz to Pop Rock to Hard Rock to Heavy Metal.

In Scona's own version of Woodstock, Fuzzgun, Scona's heavy metal Metallica wanna-be's finished 3rd. Whisky Dick, who successfully brought back memories from the eighties, finished second. The winner of it all was No God, No Soul, consisting of members from Scona's Jazz Combo, dazzling the crowd with their stunning solos and tight sound.

Scona's Annual Battle of the Bands is just another event that showcases the variety of talents Scona students possess.

1997 VALEDICTORIAN'S ADDRESS

Good evening honored guests, parents, teachers, and fellow graduates. We are gathered here tonight on this special occasion to acknowledge the many accomplishments attained by our 1997 graduating class. First, I must emphasize how privileged I am to represent our graduating class. It has taken a great amount of dedication and hard work, but as I stand here tonight I know it has been worthwhile. Graduation is not only a stepping stone on our journey through life, but a stage in our path to the reality of what is ahead. Each of us have encountered different experiences during the course at Strathcona High School. Experiences that will ultimately mould us into the people we will become. The schooling we have received from Strathcona has been much more than merely books and facts. It has enabled us, whether we wish to believe it or not, to gain confidence in ourselves and project all we have learnt. The class of 1997 has become open-minded, critical thinkers. In this way, we are all free to discover the many possibilities available to us which our world offers. We are free to discover and utilize our own individual paths to make moral decisions and proper judgements.

As I mentioned earlier, school is not just books and facts. It allows all of us to meet wonderful people and learn from them also. Friends show us how supportive they can be when we think we may have done poorly on an exam and they teach us that laughter is the best medicine. There are countless compononts that fit together to make Strathcona what it really stands for.

As members of our society, we are obligated to function as people who can help improve our world. We must work to solve the world's problems that drive us - whether it be the environment, finding a cure for AIDS, or social and economic inequalities, and commit ourselves to them. Because it is not impossible to change the world into a better place for all its members, we must realize our potential and put it to its test.

Many people think of our generation as generation X, as all play and no work. This is far from the truth. As I stand here, looking at my fellow graduates, I do not share this view. I see intelligent, courageous young people, full of excitement and confidence, ready to make a difference. And I know they will succeed. As long as we work as a whole with conviction and direction, we keep the power and we shape the world. I trust in the excellence of our graduating class, and I would like to leave you with a quote from George Bernard Shaw:

"This is a true joy in life, being used for a purpose recognized by yourself as a mighty one. Being a force of nature instead of a feverish, selfish little clod of ailments and grievances complaining that the world will not devote itself to making you happy.

I am of the opinion that my life belongs to the whole community and as I live, it is my privilege - my privilege to do for it whatever I can."

Thank you and farewell.

SHUBH AND JOHN'S EXCELLENT ADVENTURE

1997 HISTORIAN'S ADDRESS

J: Whoa Shubh! I forgot about the historian speech we have to write for commencements!

S: Commencements ... When is that, John?

J: (Checks watch) It's right now!

S&J: Bogus!

S: Maybe that's why we're on stage with all these people watching us.

J: Dude ... So what are we gonna do?

S: (Scratches head) I know! We can use that time machine we have!

S&J: Excellent

S: Whoa, John!! Where are we?

J: March 18, 1994 - High School registration day!

S: Whoa Who're those two dweebs?

J: Uh, Shubh ... that's us.

S: Bogus!

J: I wonder what we're thinking ...

S: I cannot decide which high school I should register for!

J: Myself as well. There are so many things to consider ...

Academic Standing of the school

S: ... the athletic prowess of the students ...

J: ... the presence of windows ...

S: ... the quality of the teaching staff ...

J: ... the flavours of slush in the cafeteria ...

S: ... and of course:

J: You made an excellent choice of high schools my young friends! Party on!!

J: Quickly let's go to Grade Ten.

S: September 1994. It's our first dance.

J&S: Excellent!

J: Shubh this school rocks!

S: Yea .. but for some reason, whenever I walk down the hallways, I feel like I'm in one of those toilet cleanser commercials!

S&J: Up to four months!

J: Well, here we are, in the gym. Time to bust a move!

S: Hey John! Girls! Be cool!!

S: (While attempting to lean on something and be cool, slips and falls)

I did that on purpose!! I meant to!!

J: (Gives 'em the gun)

see you in English class!

... Shubh, were they laughing at us?

S: Nah ... What's there to be laughing at?

S: That was about it for grade ten. Were we cool or what?

J: In any case, things really picked up in Grade Eleven. We got even cooler.

S: Remember CALM 20?

J: Why yes I do Shubh. That most excellent course equipped me with the skills and experience that I need to achieve my personal, financial and career goals.

S&J: Not! (High Five)

J: Remember my first driving lesson?

S: Wasn't that the first time you got to spend your first night in the hospital?

J: Yeah ... Hey! Did you hear that they're letting my Driving Instructor out of Intensive Care?

S: That's great and it's only been three years! ... Dude! That was also the year Scona won their 25th consecutive City Championship in Track and Field!

J: 25 years?

S&J: Excellent!

J: Let's go back and visit that day!

S: Scona!

J: Lords!

(repeat above several times)

S: Scona!

J: Scona!

S: Scona!

J: Scona!

J&S: Uhhhh ... You stink Ainly!

You stink!

J: Wow. What a day. This has been the biggie. Grade twelve. We're the Lords of the school, the big Kahoonas, the major bosses. It was the cherry on the fudge sundae!

J&S: Mmmmmmm ... hot fudge sundae.

S: Heh heh heh .. Hey John, remember the time we gave that little grade ten a wedgie and shoved him in his locker and ... what is it?

J: The principal's here.

S: Oh ... I mean we helped that little grade ten ... find his class.

J: Excellent recovery Shubh!

S: Grade twelve was also the year they decided the outcome of the O.J. Simpson saga.

J: Yep. After three years of racial division, mass media coverage, millions of dollars in lawyers fees, two court cases, and hundreds of witnesses, they finally found O.J.:

(look at eachother)

S: Guilty

J: Innocent

(look again, and in a vague hope to co-ordinate)

S: Innocent

S: Guilty

S: The world is a weird place, John, where a man can be both at the same time. Only in America!

J: Speaking of weird Shubh, with the turn of the millenium approaching, a number of cults have sprung up predicting the end of civilization as we know it.

S: Remember too, John, that in the past calendar year, both Micheal Jackson and Madonna became parents.

J: Hmm ... maybe those cults are onto something. What came next in grade twelve?

S: The preparation for grad: Asking a tux and renting a date.

J: Uh Shubh, I think you've got that backwards.

S: That would explain some of the problems I had. Anyway, let's go check it out!

S: John! John! I found the number of that girl you really like Now you can call her up and ask her to Grad!

J: Alright! (dials the number) Uh, Hi. This is John. John Staples. From English. In the back? Why am I calling? I was just .. calling everybody in the phone book and your number came up.

Since we're on the phone anyway, do you want to go to Grad with me? Uh-huh ... um-hm ... yeah.. All-right. See you in English!

S: She said yes?

J: Nope. She said if I ever phone her again she'll call the police. But Shubh ... I talked to her!

S&J: Excellent!

S: Wow, what an excellent three years its been!

J: yeah. This trip really brought back those memories.

S: Yep. We've gone from the little guy to the big man, from the wedgie-ee to the wedgier.

J: We've learned so much and forgotten even more. I guess that wraps up our speech.

S: John, even after all that learning stuff, I still have one question. When we go like this: where does that music come from?

J: Shubh my friend, that's why we're going to university.

THE FINAL STAGE

Imagine if you could an auditorium, filled with hundreds of excited family members and friends, and other than the traditional "Pomp and circumstance" playing in the background, complete silence. It was the moment we all had been waiting for. Graduation. Proudly parading to the seats in front of the auditorium, cameras flashed and relatives oooed and aahhed. After twelve long years of hard work and murderous exams we finally made it! Walking across the stage to receive the piece of paper that made it official was merely a technicality, and the fact that diploma exams loomed dangerously around the corner was long forgotten. Proud students and relatives alike beamed with excitement.

This year's commencement ceremony was a roaring success as the graduating Lords pranced proudly across the stage at the Jubilee Auditorium. The numerous teachers, parents, family and friends that came out to support the senior class were a credit to the immense preparation to make the evening a memorable one.

Surprisingly the ceremonies were far from boring. Short, down-to-earth speeches embedded themselves on the minds of the attendees, giving the serious tone for the event, while the performances balanced the program with amusement and relaxation. Highlights were the influencing speech of Mr.

David Wray, the guest speaker for the evening, the not-so-formal historians speech performed by John Staples and Shubh Sidhu, and the wonderful musical performances that covered a wide variety of musical tastes.

This evening will always be remembered and cherished by all those in attendance, as the superiority of Strathcona shone through again, in one of the best commencements ceremonies ever.

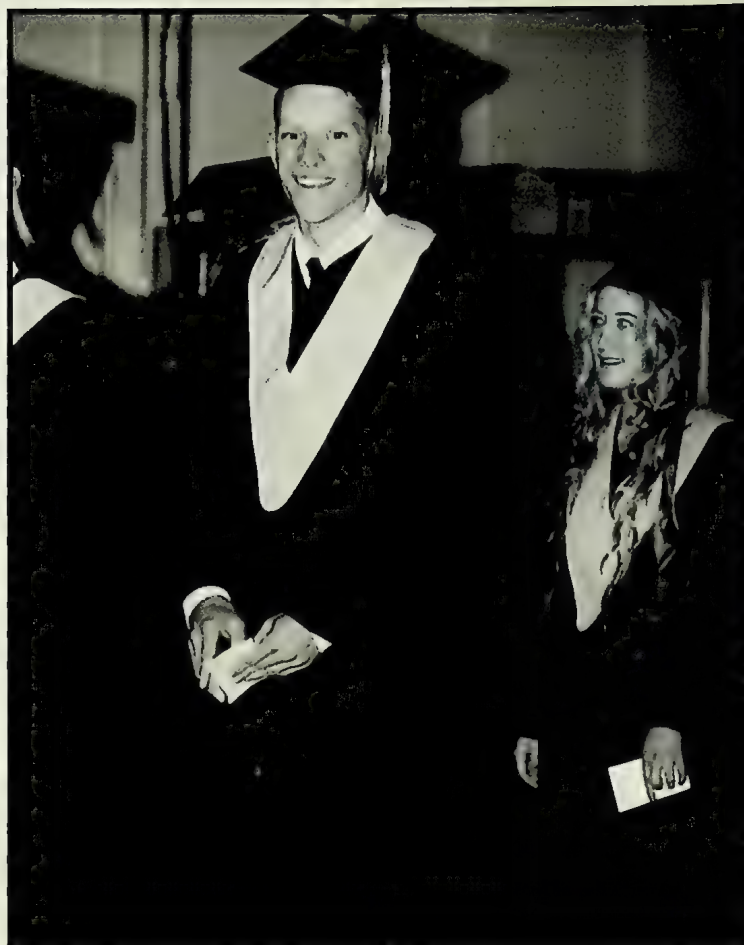

Kris Covlin and A Fist Full of Pesos jam it up at the Jubilee Auditorium.

Historians Shubh Sidhu and John Staples with the wonders of grade ten.

Congratulations, you made it!
Simeon Goa

Martin Hirsekorn in anticipation of that walk across the stage.

Mr. Anderson flips Luke Brown's tassel as a symbol of graduation.

Allison Chin with a stirring rendition of O Canada.

Grad President Lisa Kendall presents the grad gift to the school.

Victoria Draper Accepts her diploma from Mr. McEachern.

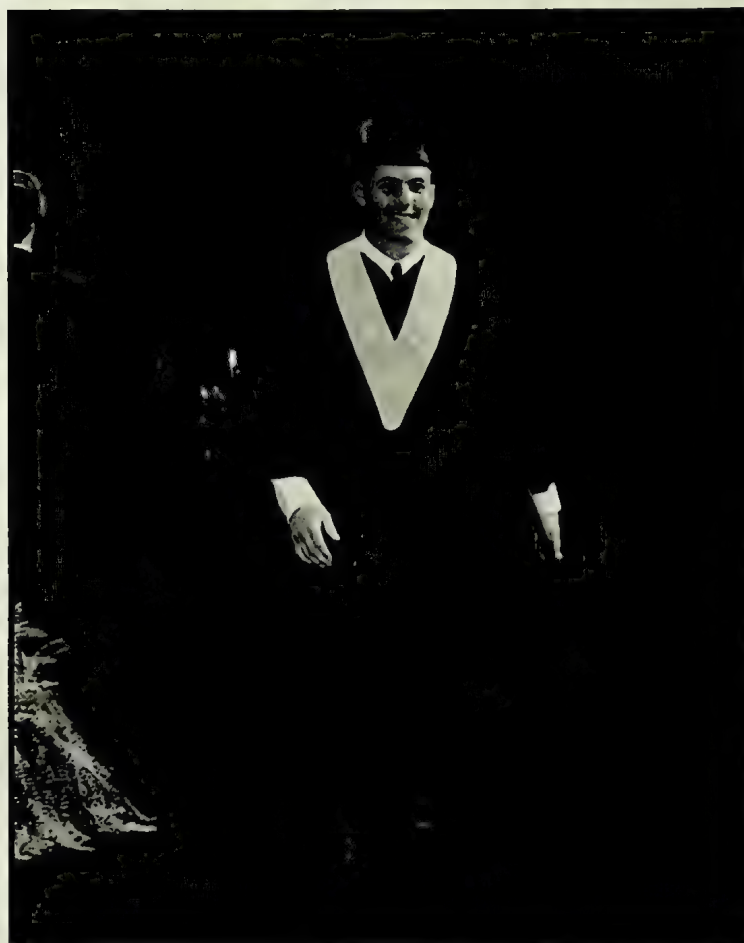

Jennifer Borosiuk stuns the audience with her beautiful voice.

Laura Field and Jeff Farragher warm up before their string quartet's performance.

Andrew Schmidt walks proudly across the stage.

A sea of graduates.

A group of friends gather for a post graduation picture.

Lisa-Marie Jaster sings the 1997
Grad Song, "Seize the Day".

Proud parents do not miss the opportunity for a quick snapshot.

Former student and guest speaker Mr. David Wray delivers an inspirational speech.

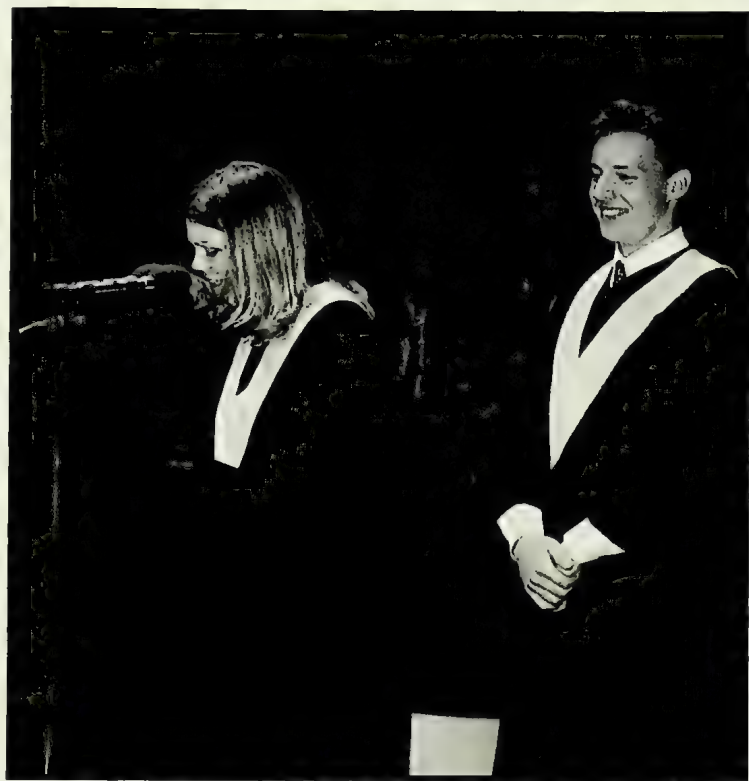

Ashley Dawe giddy at the thought of graduation.

Alayne Slavik cannot contain her excitement.

Gina Dewolf and Fayaz Dhanji await their turn in the spotlight.

Master and Mistress of Ceremonies Tish Prouse and Cheryl Cox.

A proud graduate receives congratulations from Mr. Anderson.

Tyler Waye escorts Maria Katsakioris down the stage at the Jubille Auditorium.

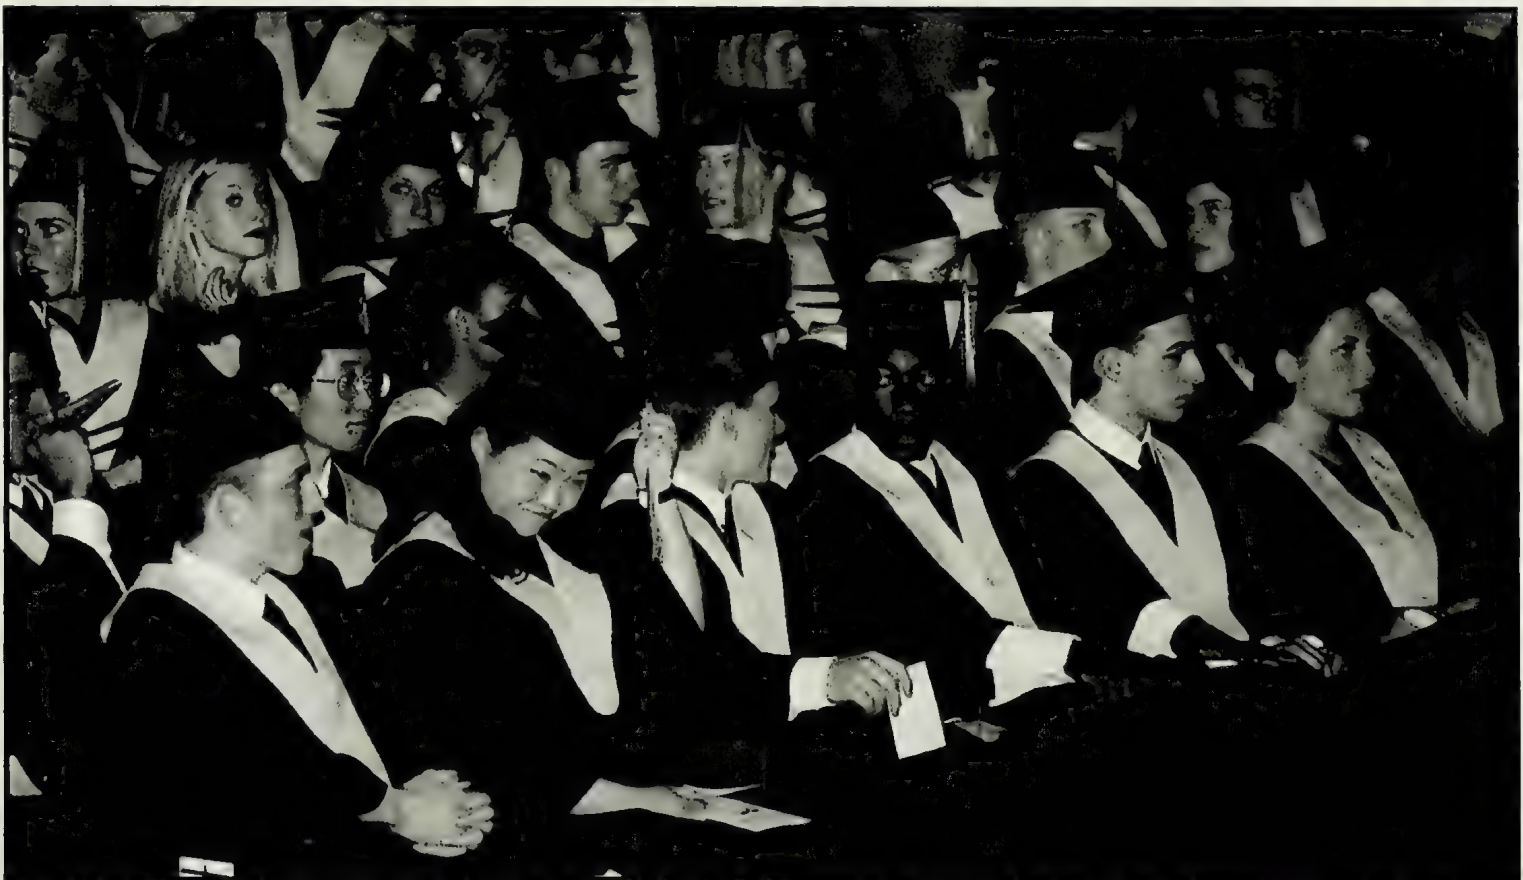

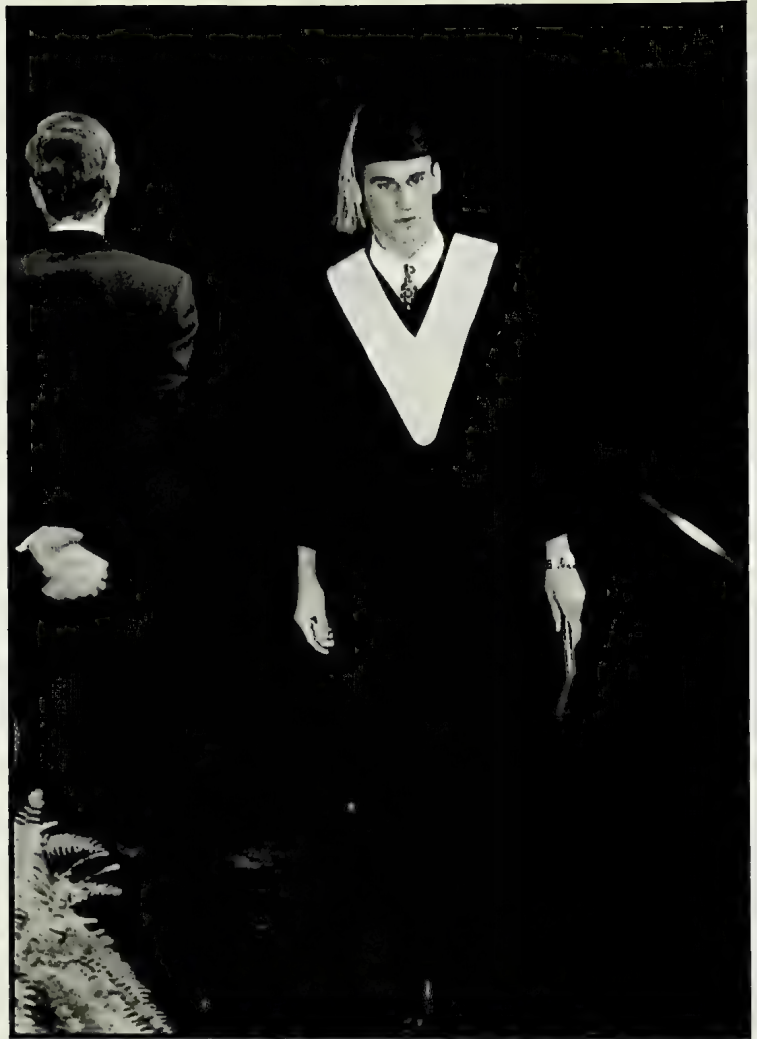

Mrs. Neely introduces the 1997 Valedictorian Fatima Kassamali.

Chuck Hastey recieves his diploma.

Commencements a time of excitement and confusion.

Grad Vice-President Melissa DeStefanis has a friendly chat with Mr.Anderson.

CARPE DIEM!!

Grad Banquet, a time when graduates appear in their "finery" for an evening of laughter, entertainment and memories.

However, before everything came to life, many graduates were just a little stressed, running around finding grad dresses or tuxedos, buying corsages, getting hair done.

But it was all worth the stress, because when everyone gathered at the Convention Centre the results were amazing!

Cameras flashing, permanent smiles were produced. One couldn't help but smile at all the excited graduates and their families. With hundreds of rolls of film capturing the cherished moments and friendships acquired over the past three years.

Dinner rolled around, and the meal was fabulous. For about half an hour graduates were free from the flash of the camera.

Honorary Grad President Mr. Goldie provided a though provoking and incredibly moving and encouraging speech, telling us like it is. And reminding us to "Get a life". Never to take anything for granted, and to do what will make us happy. Mr. Goldie is truly a role model for the graduating class of 1997.

The slideshow, reminding us of all the friendships and memories gathered over the past three years, featured at least one picture of every graduate of 1997. Tears were shed, and laughs were shared as we moved on to last part of the evening, the dance.

The first song of the dance was very unique from other years, as this year's grad song, "In Twenty Years", was completely written, scored and sung by Scona students. The music, composed by Darren Fung, lyrics written by Jen Leavitt and sung by Jen Leavitt and Allison Chin. As students and family alike shared those few moments, tears burned in many eyes, as we reflected and looked forward into the future soon to come.

The dance, truly a highlight of the banquet, allowed the grads to "get down and funky" in their apparel.

Grad banquet is a moment that will be remembered by all graduating Lords for years to come.

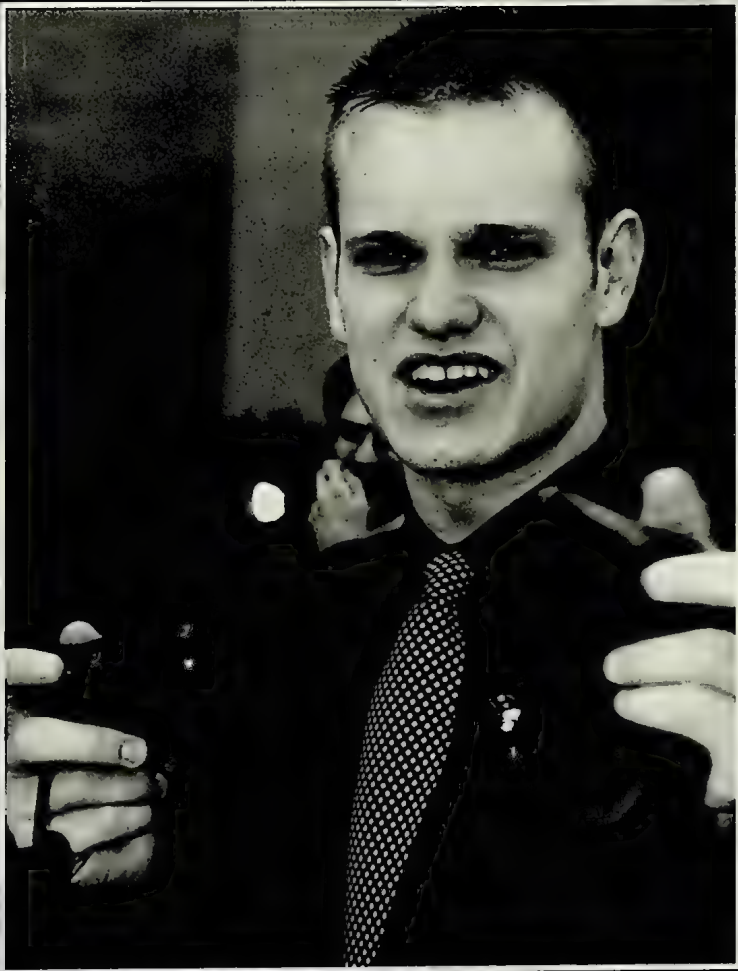

At last! Shams Moloo and Jay Palmer among the hundreds of happy graduates at the Convention Centre.

All dressed up and no place to go except grad. Martin Hirsekorn and David Leverton enjoy the speeches during banquet.

Lisa Kendall shows her appreciation to Mr. Wallace and Mr. Ferrar for their guidance in the planning of grad.

Simeon Goa can't contain himself during the dance at grad banquet.

Don Roberts making it a night he will remember.

Julie Betke, Erin Bounds and Vasu Ulagaraj living it up during the night.

A group of friends gather for a memory making photo.

The Three Amigos. Andy Percy, Tim Church and Adam Mills.

David Wong, John Staples,
Shubh Sidhu, Hamish McEwan and Chris Kim.

Can't touch this! Josh Vandergriff shows off his slick moves.

Oh so suave. Craig Malin glides across the dance floor.

The time of their life. Lisa Kendall and Darryl Wiechman.

Ain't life grand? Tamara Ritchie having a ball at the banquet.

Tronni Hargrave, Stefan Myroniuk and Katherine Mersereau.

Josh Lalonde can't contain his excitement at grad banquet.

Good Old Friends. Grad is a time to reflect on the friendships made over the past three years.

Don Iveson sporting his true colors at grad.

Get into the groove! Who can resist The Macarena?

Jennifer Leavitt and Allison Chin with a beautiful musical rendition of "In Twenty Years".

Tong Lam at the height of fashion.

Taryn De Vos, never satisfied with the norm.

Track star Tawa Babatude takes some time to enjoy grad.

Jeff Mottershead, waiting for the evening to begin.

Never looked so fine. Grad Banquet brings out our true fashion sense.

Yes!! We are finally finished!
Adam Mills celebrates.

Showing off her beautiful smile.
Melissa Horner.

Josh Lalonde and Sophie
Dvorsak party down.

Honorary grad president Mr.
Goldie, satisfied with a moving speech.

Just a couple of jokers. Eric Nelson and Jay Percival ham it up for the camera.

Everybody dance now! Jillian Faltin and Ellen Buchan busting a move on the dance floor.

Sophistication and style. Hitesh Patel and Monica Sham.
